2014 tax refunds delayed due to 6th State Reform

The expected deadline for Belgian resident taxpayers to file their personal income tax returns for income year 2014 is approaching. In recent years, following the success of electronic income tax filings via the tax-on-web system, Belgian tax authorities have been able to reduce processing time. Consequently, tax bills were issued earlier and many Belgian taxpayers already received their tax refund (or additional tax assessment) during the same year in which the tax return was filed.

For the 2014 Belgian income tax returns, this positive trend of reduced processing time is unlikely to continue. This can be explained by both the 2014 Belgian income tax returns and the Belgian tax calculation method becoming significantly more complicated due to the 6th State Reform’s partial shift of tax competencies from a Federal level to a regional one.

As such, the number of codes in the 2014 Belgian income tax return will likely increase and additionally, the calculation tools used by the Belgian tax authorities will need to be adjusted enabling the calculation of both the Federal and Regional assessment.
