OUR MISSION
To honor and empower Wounded Warriors.

OUR PURPOSE
To raise awareness and enlist the public’s aid for the needs of injured service members; to help injured servicemen and women aid and assist each other; and to provide unique, direct programs and services to meet their needs.

OUR VISION
To foster the most successful, well-adjusted generation of injured service members in our nation’s history.

OUR HISTORY
Wounded Warrior Project® (WWP) began when several veterans and friends, moved by stories of the first wounded service members returning home from Afghanistan and Iraq, took action to help others in need. What started as a desire to provide comfort items to wounded servicemen and women at Walter Reed Army Medical Center has grown into a holistic rehabilitative effort to assist warriors with visible and invisible wounds as they recover and transition back to civilian life. Tens of thousands of wounded service members, family members, and caregivers receive support each year through WWP programs.

PROGRAMS
Our programs are specifically structured to engage warriors, nurture their minds and bodies, and encourage their economic empowerment. Our families and caregivers are provided comfort, care, and education to help support the recovery of their injured service members.

NICKY NORWOOD first served his country in the Gulf War, then later in Operation Iraqi Freedom after reenlisting with the Mississippi National Guard. He returned home with a bad back, post-traumatic stress disorder, and no network of support. Wounded Warrior Project stepped in with opportunities for Nicky to network and find encouragement from other injured veterans. Today, Nicky, pictured here with his wife, Sherry, is paying it forward by serving as a Peer Mentor to WWP Alumni.
NICK BENNETT was deployed to Iraq with the U.S. Marine Corps just two months when a rocket blast sent him home to Indiana with devastating physical and mental injuries. Wounded Warrior Project events give his family a chance to heal together.
WHAT DOES A LIFETIME OF COMMITMENT LOOK LIKE? Start with a trust fund that will keep the most severely injured warriors out of institutional care for years to come. Continue with a growing number of programs and services that promote a better lifestyle, from regular access to mental health counseling to hands-on coaching to improve diet and exercise. We are committed today, tomorrow, and for a lifetime as we transition into our second decade of service at Wounded Warrior Project (WWP). You can chart our progress through this 2013 annual report, which will show you that:

- 96 percent of Alumni said the computer skills learned in the Transition Training Academy™ (TTA) would guide their future career choices
- $27.9 million in combined annual and retroactive benefits were awarded to Alumni
- 96 percent of warriors said they would seek out future mental health support as a result of Project Odyssey®
- 93 percent of warriors said they left a Physical Health & Wellness (PH&W) event with greater self-esteem
- 90 percent of warriors said the Peer Support program contributed to their ability to help and support other injured service members
- 84 percent of veterans placed in a job through Warriors to Work™ were still working full time 24 months later

Our lifetime commitment is to empower warriors so they can move beyond surviving to thriving and embracing life, meeting long-term goals, raising families, and enjoying a rewarding career. The steps we took toward that goal this year resulted in direct, measurable impact, including 468 newly trained Peer Mentors ready to counsel and encourage their fellow Alumni. Just over 2,000 family members were served, with 94 percent stating they gained new coping skills for the unique challenges associated with caring for injured veterans. We tackled a rising trend of weight gain among the veteran population with dynamic and engaging physical wellness events; 93 percent said three months after an event they had tried a new sport or recreational activity. These accomplishments and many others lay the foundation for warriors to achieve the best possible quality of life and, ultimately, make this the most successful generation of injured service members in our nation’s history.

None of this would be possible without the support of our donors. The generosity of our major donors, community supporters, and partners not only furthers our mission financially, but provides invaluable public awareness about our cause. Within our donor pages, we’ve highlighted 885 donors who have supported WWP since its inception 10 years ago as a tiny backpack operation. Words cannot fully express our gratitude for their belief in our vision for this generation of post-9/11 veterans.

Sincerely,

Steven Nardizzi

A LETTER
We’re there at the outset of a warrior’s recovery in the hospital with WWP PACKS filled with essential care items such as clothing, toiletries, playing cards, and more — all designed to make a hospital stay more comfortable. Under the PEER SUPPORT program, warriors are trained to become Peer Mentors who serve as listeners, role models, and motivators for fellow Alumni. Our ALUMNI program offers warriors long-term support and camaraderie through sporting events, personal and professional development summits, and recreational activities.

We also serve our warriors through the WWP RESOURCE CENTER, a one-stop shop for information equipped to help warriors, caregivers, and family members identify resources to meet a wide range of needs. INTERNATIONAL teammates in Germany work directly with injured warriors coming from the battlefield and bring warriors previously treated at Landstuhl Regional Medical Center back to the hospital to personally say “thank you.” The resiliency initiative is a powerful encouragement to medical staff, who get to see the transition from hospital bed to successful recovery. Our knowledgeable BENEFITS SERVICE teammates assist warriors in filing claims correctly the first time, as well as advocating on their behalf for missed compensation opportunities in prior claims.

"I WENT FROM BEING TOLD I’D BE IN A CONSTANT VEGETABLE STATE TO NOW PROGRESSING TO WHERE I CAN WALK OVER 300 FEET ON MY OWN. I FEEL THERE IS NOTHING I CAN’T DO, BUT I DIDN’T ALWAYS FEEL THAT WAY. KEITH HAS INSTILLED THAT POSITIVE ATTITUDE IN ME.”

-- Keith Sekora (left) & Chris Wolff

Chris Wolff will never forget the sound of the rocket-propelled grenade bouncing off the airplane’s wing or the roar of the wind rushing through the shattered windows.

“I accepted it; I was going to die in the sky over Iraq,” Chris recalls.

Chris survived combat but was later almost killed by a flu shot given to him during his service. The virus attacked his spinal cord and paralyzed him from the neck down. Chris had the willpower to prove the doctors wrong, but he lacked the motivation. That’s when Keith Sekora, another Air Force veteran living with mobility issues, entered the picture.

Together, they hold each other accountable, forcing each other to push beyond the perceived limits of their injuries. The hospital is a distant memory now as they support each other in the next chapter of their lives — to include Chris walking on the beach at Keith’s wedding.

“Having someone on your side who is going through exactly what you’re going through makes all the difference,” Keith says.
COMBAT STRESS RECOVERY PROGRAM helps warriors and their families maintain healthy, meaningful relationships, while pursuing life goals free from the barriers or stigmas associated with mental health issues. Assisting in that process is PROJECT ODYSSEY, which uses the healing power of nature, along with support from mental health professionals, to let warriors take a step back from everyday routines and gain a new perspective on life. More than a one-time event, warriors leave Project Odyssey with tight-knit friendships and continued personal outreach from WWP teammates. RESTOREWARRIORS.ORG offers educational tools and resources — including a self-assessment and videos of warriors sharing solutions to everyday challenges — to warriors and families living with the invisible wounds of war.

FAMILY SUPPORT is dedicated to caring for the family members and caregivers who form such an integral part of a warrior’s successful recovery. Some services we provide include respite retreats, educational events on self-care, and therapeutic support groups. The INDEPENDENCE PROGRAM supports the long-term wellbeing of severely injured warriors through the combined efforts of the warrior, family member or caregiver, a treatment team, and community support professional. Together, they craft a personalized plan to help the warrior reach his or her goals and plans.

When Christine Schei’s son Erik was gravely injured while serving in Iraq, she immediately began caring for him without considering the seriousness of his injuries, or how it would affect her own life.

“We’d never met anyone with a brain injury before, so we didn’t know,” Christine says.

Erik was pulled back from the brink of death, but the sniper’s bullet left him confined to a wheelchair and unable to perform the most basic of tasks, including eating and dressing himself. Christine was experienced as a mother, but she was unprepared to become a caregiver. That’s when Wounded Warrior Project stepped in with a caregiver retreat, which gave her a network of other caregivers to lean on for advice and some respite from the 24-hour demands of caring for her son.

The Scheis also enrolled in the Independence Program, which helps Erik live life on his own terms. Each warrior in this program receives comprehensive, long-term support from community service providers and a custom life plan for reaching goals — all at no cost to the warrior or his family.

“It gives him a chance at a normal life,” Christine says.
The PHYSICAL HEALTH & WELLNESS (PH&W) program provides recreation, adaptive sports programs, and overall strategies to help warriors and families lead positive, active lifestyles. PH&W focuses on four areas: inclusive/adaptive sports and recreation, nutrition, wellness, and fitness. Our end goal is to create a generation of injured service members well-adjusted in body and pursuing independent living.

SOLDIER RIDE® is a unique four-day opportunity for warriors to use cycling and the bonds of service to overcome physical, mental, or emotional wounds. Warriors of all ability levels can cycle on adaptive hand cycles, trikes, and bicycles and experience a confidence boost as they tackle the challenge along roads lined with cheering crowds. The event is also a chance to develop peer support among other warriors and friendships that last long after the ride.

Retired Army Ranger John Rego is frank about what he considers the perfect exercise: "The more challenging the better."

Over the past two years, he has lost about 60 pounds with his grueling workouts, but he wasn’t always so inspired to stay fit. He started his journey on his couch, living with post-traumatic stress disorder and the residual physical pain from injuries sustained in a building collapse in Iraq. He was inspired by an Under Armour workout with other injured service members in Baltimore, Maryland, to get back in shape. In his first workouts post-injury, he couldn’t get his chin over the pull-up bar. Perseverance eventually paid off though, and provided John not only a fit body, but a new attitude toward life.

“The new John Rego is extremely positive, especially compared to who I was nine years ago,” John says. “I really want to spread the word to other veterans so they can feel better, too.”

98% of warriors said they would seek out more recreational activities in their community after attending a physical health & wellness event.

93% of warriors said they left a physical health & wellness event with greater self-esteem.
Economic empowerment programs allow Alumni to be successful in every aspect of their lives, including financial stability and a rewarding civilian career.

TRANSITION TRAINING ACADEMY (TTA) equips veterans with information technology experience and certifications through free classes across the country. TTA instructors engage each student, both onsite and online, with a “learn-by-doing” technique that increases the potential for success.

TRACK™ is the first whole-life approach to education for wounded service members and focuses over the course of a year on academic, personal, and vocational/employment-related needs. As part of a “cohort,” each warrior earns up to 24 credit hours at a local college while also experiencing health and wellness training, personal finance workshops, and career development opportunities such as resume writing and interview skills.

EDUCATION SERVICES guides warriors through their options with secondary education, provides customized plans for success, and educates warriors about campus resources available to them.

The WARRIORS TO WORK program offers career guidance and support to wounded service members, family members, and caregivers interested in transitioning to the civilian workforce. Specialists assist warriors, set attainable goals, market their skills, and prepare them for the interview process, while also educating employers on working with warriors, including how to recruit and retain veterans and provide reasonable accommodations.

“I’M DEALING WITH A NEW NORMAL. I CAN’T JUST GO OUT AND DO TRADITIONAL CLASSES. THIS KEEPS ME IN THE GAME AND LEARNING.”

ECONOMIC EMPOWERMENT

Not too long ago, Tiffany Green felt her life was spiraling out of control. She had given up a rewarding career as a musical entertainer and actress to care full-time for her husband, a former Marine living with serious post-traumatic stress disorder. The independence and creative freedom she enjoyed were replaced by days spent indoors or hours sitting in a hospital waiting room.

“I felt like I was losing so much of who I am,” Tiffany says.

Then, in 2011, they were greeted outside the hospital door by a Wounded Warrior Project teammate. That introduction led to an Alumni Summit, where Tiffany learned about Transition Training Academy. The online TTA class was a perfect match for Tiffany, who has to work around time constraints and her husband’s needs. Besides learning valuable skills, the class also opened up friendships and a network of support with other caregivers around the country.

84% OF VETERANS PLACED INTO A JOB THROUGH WARRIORS TO WORK WERE STILL WORKING FULL-TIME 24 MONTHS LATER

96% OF ALUMNI SAID THE COMPUTER SKILLS LEARNED IN TRANSITION TRAINING ACADEMY WOULD GUIDE THEIR FUTURE CAREER CHOICES
NO MATTER WHAT THE MISSION WAS, TO ME IT WAS ALWAYS TO PROTECT THE GUY ON MY LEFT AND THE GUY ON MY RIGHT. I FELT LOST AT FIRST WHEN I TRANSITIONED OUT OF SERVICE, BUT ADVOCATING FOR OTHER WARRIORS HAS GIVEN ME A NEW MISSION.

POLICY & GOVERNMENT AFFAIRS

Government support is critical to making this the most successful, well-adjusted generation of injured service members in our nation’s history. That’s why we’ve positioned a team of skilled advocates in Washington, D.C., to make sure that much-needed support is there.

The policy team relies on feedback from our Alumni for a “boots-on-the-ground” perspective that not only lends authority to our work, but helps ensure that policymaking in Congress makes a real-world difference in the lives of those we serve. That feedback informs our advocacy in four areas: mental health, economic empowerment, long-term rehabilitation, and improving the effectiveness of government programs that were established to help warriors and their families transition from active duty to successful community reintegration.

That’s evidenced by our first major legislative victory, the Traumatic Servicemembers’ Group Life Insurance (TSGLI). TSGLI provides injured service members up to $100,000 in short-term financial assistance in the event of a traumatic injury. Between its inception in 2005 and October 31, 2013, TSGLI has paid out $817 million in benefits. We also successfully championed for caregivers of wounded veterans and saw our legislative vision realized through the Caregivers and Veterans Omnibus Health Services Act of 2010. Since its inception, more than 16,000 caregivers have received training, technical support, mental health counseling, health care coverage, respite care, and a modest financial stipend through the Department of Veterans Affairs.

$817 MILLION IN TSGLI BENEFITS HAVE BEEN PAID TO INJURED SERVICE MEMBERS BETWEEN 2005 AND OCT. 31, 2013

16,000 CAREGIVERS HAVE RECEIVED ASSISTANCE SINCE 2010 THROUGH THE CAREGIVERS AND VETERANS OMNIBUS HEALTH SERVICES ACT.
The Wounded Warrior Project® (WWP) board of directors is responsible for guiding the organization, and providing strategic and financial oversight, including approval of the nonprofit’s audited financial information and Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Form 990. The full board meets three times a year, and its four committees meet separately throughout the year as needed. WWP board directors are not financially compensated for their participation.

VISION PARTNERS

In 2011, Safeway, Inc. dedicated Veterans Day weekend to pay tribute to service members by asking their customers to donate to Wounded Warrior Project at all Safeway, Vons, Pavilions, Dominic’s, Randall’s, Genuardi’s, Tom Thumb, and Carrs stores in the United States. In many of these store locations, WWP Alumni shared their personal stories of how Wounded Warrior Project helped them on their road to recovery. Through this nationwide activation, Safeway, Inc. was able to generate an enormous amount of awareness on behalf of WWP, in addition to raising $1 million to help fuel programs that save lives.

Bank of America

Bank of America, a long-standing supporter of Wounded Warrior Project, assists warriors and their families through financial planning seminars and supports the Warriors to Work program. Additionally, Bank of America spreads awareness and generates funds through their annual “Express Your Thanks” campaign. For every expression of thanks, Bank of America donated $1 and raised over $1 million for WWP in 2013. This program includes online activations, awareness campaigns, and warrior experiences through the Bank of America 500, Bank of America Chicago Marathon, Major League Baseball All-Star game, and a host of other activities. With a history of supporting active service members, veterans, and their families for more than 98 years, Bank of America is proud to support the mission of WWP.

Raytheon

In 2005, U-Haul became a founding partner of Soldier Ride, a Wounded Warrior Project program that focuses on physical health, wellness, and engagement. U-Haul is also a proud supporter of Warriors to Work and TRACK, and assists with the moving needs of WWP Alumni nationwide. U-Haul’s support of the U.S. military dates back to 1945. Today, veterans remain a large part of the company’s success as U-Haul continues to seek them to become members of the U-Haul family.

Overstock

A strong belief in assisting injured service members prompted Overstock.com to partner with Wounded Warrior Project in 2009. As part of their commitment, Overstock.com shared stories of warriors, families, and caregivers through their website and encouraged shoppers to donate to WWP at checkout. The website also hosts a page with products customers can purchase to support WWP, including the Transition Training Academy (TTA) and Warriors to Work programs. Their commitment extends beyond financial contributions to impacting the lives of injured service members through the donation of tickets to Oakland Raiders and Oakland As games in California.

Acosta

In 2009, Acosta Sales & Marketing and Wounded Warrior Project teamed together to create the national cause-marketing campaign Believe In Heroes®. This campaign allows for retailers and consumer packaged goods companies to raise funds and awareness for WWP Beginning September 11 and running through Veterans Day, November 11, Believe in Heroes calls on Americans to show their support and appreciation for our service members and newest generation of veterans in a simple everyday way — grocery shopping. What started on the 10-year commemoration of 9/11 has raised over $10 million to date for WWP.

We have made every effort to avoid errors and omissions from this list of FY 2013 donors, but mistakes can occur. If your name was inadvertently omitted, listed in the wrong place, or misspelled, please accept our sincere apologies and contact us at majorgifts@woundedwarriorproject.org. We would also like to recognize our Allies, those who generously gave between $5,000 and $24,999. “WILL AND I HAVE ALWAYS HAD ENORMOUS RESPECT FOR THE YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN WHO HAVE SACRIFICED SO MUCH TO KEEP US SAFE. HIS FATHER WAS A DOCTOR IN WORLD WAR I, AND WE HAVE HAD SEVERAL FAMILY MEMBERS SERVE OUR GREAT NATION. WE DISCOVERED WWP WHILE WATCHING ONE OF HIS FAVORITE PROGRAMS, 'THE O'REILLY FACTOR.' WE BEGAN MAKING CONTRIBUTIONS AT THAT TIME IN A SMALL WAY. ONE OF WILS' WISHES BEFORE PASSING WAS TO HELP WOUNDED WARRIOR PROJECT. IT BRINGS ME GREAT JOY TO NOT ONLY HONOR HIS WISH, BUT HIS MEMORY BY GIVING TO THOSE WHO GAVE SO MUCH.”

GRANTMAKERS

Grant support from community, corporate, family, private, and public foundations, and through donor-advised funds, is especially important for a nonprofit that doesn’t accept government funding. We are honored that these individuals and organizations have done a thorough review of WWP, and included us in their selection process to fuel programs that honor and empower Wounded Warriors.

COMMUNITY EVENTS

Community events are testament to the love and respect the American public has for its veterans. Unsolicited and independent of WWP, these supporters spend their own time and energy to raise awareness for our mission and the challenges our veterans face daily.

“For a long time, I was troubled by the lack of news coverage on our service members coming home. As a Vietnam veteran, I knew how it felt to be unappreciated for your patriotism. We served proudly and, like today’s warriors, came home with visible and invisible wounds.”

“I decided to turn a negative into a positive and, after weeks of research, chose Wounded Warrior Project because its mission promised to make a difference. The Naples Golf Charity Outing is now in its fourth year and ranked second place nationally as an individual community fundraising event.”

Gift-in-kind donations come from donors who waive the costs of services we provide our alumni. The following individuals have contributed to our cause every year since our inception in 2003. Their continuous support has not only promoted the growth and success of Wounded Warrior Project, but changed and saved the lives of countless veterans. We offer sincere gratitude for their ongoing support and dedication to our mission.

WE BELIEVE STRONGLY THAT THE SACRIFICES MADE BY OUR SERVICE MEMBERS AND THEIR FAMILIES, PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE, ARE WHAT HAS MADE OUR COUNTRY GREAT.

WE WERE BORN IN 1949 AND GREW UP IN THE AFTERMATH OF WORLD WAR II. PATRIOTISM IS A PART OF OUR HISTORY, AND WE HAVE COME TO REALIZE THAT IT IS NOT ENOUGH TO JUST INSTALL THAT INSTANT IN OUR CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

NO ONE IN OUR IMMEDIATE FAMILY HAS BEEN CALLED UPON TO SERVE IN THE MILITARY SINCE WORLD WAR II, HOWEVER, IN OUR DEBT TO THOSE WHO HAVE EVER SERVED IS ONGOING AND IMPORTANT TO US TO RECOGNIZE. THE HONOR IN NOT GIVING IS FOR THOSE WHO HAVE GIVEN SO MUCH FOR ALL OF US, AND IT IS WITH A HUMBLE SPIRIT OF GRATITUDE THAT WE WELCOME YOU.

Our ability to create a lifetime of commitment for this generation of warriors was greatly enhanced last year when working Americans gave more than $5.4 million to Wounded Warrior Project. Their selfless generosity has a direct impact on our ability to empower thousands of injured warriors.

We are also grateful for the public awareness generated through employee giving. Word about our mission is spreading through thousands of workplace fundraisers and campaigns that involve not only coworkers, but their families and friends, too. That grassroots support is critical as we transition into the next decade of service.

WORKPLACE EVENTS
Rally employees and morale through competitions between departments, holiday giving drives, and incentives like “casual Friday.”

CORPORATE MATCHES
Matching gifts further emphasize an employer’s dedication to charity and community service.

ADAM HARRIS was exposed to some of the hardest fights in Iraq over the course of three back-to-back deployments as an infantry Marine. Years after he separated from the Marine Corps, those scenes of violence still replayed in his mind, leaving Adam depressed and angry. His life was changed when another veteran in Boise, Idaho, convinced Adam to attend a Project Odyssey retreat. “I faced some of the things I had a hard time accepting, and I was able to forgive myself and move on,” Adam says.
