Unit 3: Comparative Analysis and Text Adaptation

Mark Scheme
Mark schemes are prepared by the Principal Examiner and considered, together with the relevant questions, by a panel of subject teachers. This mark scheme includes any amendments made at the standardisation events which all examiners participate in and is the scheme which was used by them in this examination. The standardisation process ensures that the mark scheme covers the students’ responses to questions and that every examiner understands and applies it in the same correct way. As preparation for standardisation each examiner analyses a number of students' scripts: alternative answers not already covered by the mark scheme are discussed and legislated for. If, after the standardisation process, examiners encounter unusual answers which have not been raised they are required to refer these to the Principal Examiner.

It must be stressed that a mark scheme is a working document, in many cases further developed and expanded on the basis of students’ reactions to a particular paper. Assumptions about future mark schemes on the basis of one year’s document should be avoided; whilst the guiding principles of assessment remain constant, details will change, depending on the content of a particular examination paper.

Question 1

Marking Procedure

1. Refer to question-specific mark scheme initially to ascertain overall band.
2. Assess each AO separately, using grid to ascertain the relevant sub band and then individual mark for each AO.
3. Additional points and ideas will be added during standardisation.
MARKING GRID FOR A2 ENGLISH LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE: QUESTION 1

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Band 4</th>
<th>AO2 (Marks out of 45)</th>
<th>AO3 (Marks out of 15)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>39 – 45</td>
<td>Profound analysis of literary or linguistic texts; sense of overview; illuminating reading of text. Possibly conceptualised or individualistic in approach. Conceptual comment on cohesion and textual structure. Cogent comments on features of speech and how speech works.</td>
<td>Assimilates and contextualises references with originality. Total overview that may offer observations on wider contexts. Exploratory. Significant similarities and differences are analysed in an original/personal, possibly conceptual, manner. All texts effortlessly integrated in to cogent comparison.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>34 – 38</td>
<td>Secure and coherent reading underpinned by good textual evidence; textual grasp very evident. Close focus on details with a range of examples discussed. Coherent comment on form and structure; thoughtful points made on speech and how it works.</td>
<td>Skilful and secure analysis and commentary; clear sense of context/variation/contextual influences underpins reading. Close focus on texts. Coherently/systematically compares and contrasts writer’s choice of form, structure, mode, language. Confident comparison.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>29 – 33</td>
<td>Close reading becomes obvious; some exploration. Growing confidence of interpretation. Careful use of illustrated points. Explains form and structure accurately with significant points about speech features; some comment on how speech works.</td>
<td>Expresses clearly comparisons and contrasts between two texts, clear interplay between text and context/sense of contextual variation; comments clearly on a variety of points/areas. Analysis may be imbalanced; may use anchor text; possibly imbalance in text coverage.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

| Band 3 |  |
|--------|  |
| 24 – 28 | Responds with growing confidence; appreciation of style, structure and form becoming apparent. May concentrate on one area at expense of others. Some distinguishing features commented upon; speech features are commented upon but may lack contextual understanding. | Context commented on; points are made but implicit meanings are probably shown; analysis may show implicit meanings; some comment on language use in texts. Imbalance in coverage or only two contexts compared. |
| Band 2 | 20 – 23 | Some recognition of implied meaning; at least two illustrated points are made. Possibly lacks evidence in places; broader, list-like comments may feature. Speech comments will feature but will be made simply and may concentrate on straightforward mode differences. Very little contextual comment made. | 5 – 6 | Comparative framework used but may be partial/simplistic; develops a line of argument underpinned by comment on overall context; probably list-like in construction. Imbalance in coverage of texts; lacks evidence in places. |
| Band 1 | 11 – 15 | A little understanding; sometimes responds to surface features/odd textual references but main focus is on textual narrative or general points. Speech points are totally general. | 3 | Superficial idea of context. Occasional insight but not sustained; one area of study noted, others are ignored. Lacks details and probably little evidence used. |
|        | 1 – 10  | A little awareness of text but form and structure are ignored. Erroneous use of speech terms. Skimpy reading; no analysis; no engagement with meaning of text. | 1 – 2 | Very little awareness of context; very limited ideas. Very superficial |
|        | 16 – 19 | Basic and generalised; responds to surface features in a broad fashion. May take a narrative approach with occasional simplistic comments. Lacks details or engagement and very few speech features, not related to the context at all. | 4 | May see how context influences language use; general awareness of writer’s techniques and impact on meaning. Responds to obvious or broad links or comparisons. Sometimes comments on less important links. May lack details and evidence. |
SECTION A

Question 1

01 Read the three texts printed on the following pages. These texts are linked by the fact that they are all to do with names.

Text A is a part of a conversation.
Text B is an article from the BBC website.
Text C is a poem written by Philip Larkin.

Compare Texts A, B and C, showing how the writers or speakers convey their ideas and feelings about the subject matter.

Your analysis should include consideration of the following:

• the writers’ or speakers’ choices of vocabulary, grammar and style
• the relationship between texts and the significance of context on language use.

(60 marks)

Assessment Objectives tested on this question: AO2 (45 marks), AO3 (15 marks).

Some possible content/stylistic points students may refer to:

• difference in attitudes of speakers and writers, eg information gathering, entertaining, satirising might be a good starting point for the purpose of each text
• use of various linguistic choices to reflect the details and underpin the different purposes of each text of the situation: eg proper noun usage in Text A (John, William) and Text B (Doug Hole, Terry Bull), whereas no proper nouns used in Text C, possibly deliberately in order to anonymise
• focus on specific differences of context and variation of content: names of people in different situations; also the difference between public and private ideas and different traditions
• lexical issues: different frequency words with low frequency mainly in Text C, higher frequency words in Texts A and B to reflect purpose and audience; speech content and loose choice of words as opposed to carefully chosen words of published texts
• focus on information gathering in Text A and being part of a larger text; sharing humour of names in Text B; Text C’s more serious purpose
• structural differences in the texts: Text A uses adjacency pairs; Text B uses paragraphs to convey the information; Text C uses carefully rhyming stanzas
• genre differences to reflect purpose: possibly more “serious” message of Text C, journalistic humour in Text B, genuine information seeking in Text A
• the notion of speaker “talking” to an audience in Texts B and C compared with turn taking in Text A.

SECTION B

EITHER

_Cupcakes and Kalashnikovs_ – Eleanor Mills (Ed.)

Read the source material which follows and answer both questions.

 Text D is from ‘The Social Aspects of Birth Control’ by Emma Goldman.

Question 2

02  Imagine that you are a journalist who writes for a Sunday newspaper and you are part of a team contributing to a series of articles on birth control. Your task is to write an article which deals with the changing attitudes to birth control in the early twentieth century. Using the ideas found in Goldman’s piece, write an article presenting the main issues.

You should give your article an appropriate headline.

You should adapt the source material, using your own words as far as possible, without using direct quotations from the original text. Your article should be approximately 300-400 words in length.

In your adaptation you should:

- use language appropriately to address purpose and audience
- write accurately and coherently, applying relevant ideas and concepts.

(25 marks)

Assessment Objective tested on this question: AO4 (25 marks)

Why has the passage been selected for use in this question?

- Interesting ideas that have relevance today
- Focus on “attitudes” and “birth control”
- To help assess candidates’ technical accuracy.

What you might expect to see in students’ answers:

- selection of material directly relating to the subject matter and to the attitudes seen (or hinted at)
- some creative use of the written form to convey the facts: be open to interesting and original ideas/approaches here
- sense of context – some stylistic features and perhaps a clear sense of using the written mode and notion of being part of a larger document
- conversion of first person narrative of source material; use of third person narrative
- convincing sense of written mode; fluency and own register adopted.

Some possible stylistic points students may use:

- appropriate use of register and tone for informative section with a range of source material to help to convey the purpose (inform) of the piece
- clearly structured piece which deals with the material in a logical fashion, not necessarily following the order of the source material
- possible use of emotive language for specific effects.
AND

Question 3

03 Write a commentary which explains the choices you made when writing your article, commenting on the following:

- how language and form have been used to suit audience and purpose
- how vocabulary and other stylistic features have been used to shape meaning and to achieve particular effects.

You should aim to write about 150 – 250 words in this commentary.

(15 marks)

Assessment Objective tested on this question: AO1 (15 marks)

Some possible analytical points students may refer to:

- comment on register and tone of address
- three or four features from document commented on, eg use of lexis, informative and entertaining language, use of stylistic features, possible use of value laden adjectives
- use of third person narrative
- comment on title
- comment on structure expected for top band.

Text E is from ‘La Bella Vita’ by Vida Adamoli

Question 4

04 Imagine that you are a journalist who writes for a newspaper aimed at English visitors to Italy. You write a regular feature on the impact of tourism on local communities. Your task is to write an article about Brunetto il Piccolo and the way his life has been affected by tourism.

You should give your article an appropriate headline.

You should adapt the source material, using your own words as far as possible, without using direct quotations from the original text. Your article should be approximately 300 – 400 words in length.

In your adaptation you should:

• use language appropriately to address purpose and audience
• write accurately and coherently, applying relevant ideas and concepts.

(25 marks)

Assessment Objective tested on this question: AO4 (25 marks)

Why has the passage been selected for use in this question?

• Interesting character who has taken advantage of his situation
• Focus on “Brunetto” and “his changing life”
• To help assess candidates’ technical accuracy.

What you might expect to see in students’ answers:

• selection of material directly relating to the character’s life and to his attitudes
• some creative use of the journalistic genre to convey the facts about him: be open to interesting approaches to how he is written about
• sense of context – perhaps a clear sense of using a journalistic approach
• conversion of first person narrative of source material; use of third person narrative
• convincing sense of written mode; fluency and appropriate style adopted.

Some possible stylistic points students may use:

• appropriate use of register and tone for informative and entertaining article with a range of source material to help to convey the purpose (entertain and inform) of the piece
• clearly structured piece which deals with the material in a logical fashion, not necessarily following the order of the source material
• sense of context – some stylistic features and perhaps a clear sense of using the written mode
• possible stylistic tools used: metaphor and imagery.
AND

Question 5

05 Write a commentary which explains the choices you made when writing your article, commenting on the following:

- how language and form have been used to suit audience and purpose
- how vocabulary and other stylistic features have been used to shape meaning and to achieve particular effects.

You should aim to write about 150 – 250 words in this commentary.

(15 marks)

Assessment Objective tested on this question: AO1 (15 marks)

Some possible analytical points students may refer to:

- comment on register and tone of address
- three or four features from the article commented on, eg use of lexis, informative and entertaining language, use of stylistic features, possible use of value laden adjectives
- use of third person narrative
- comment on headline
- comment on article’s structure expected for top band.

Text F is from ‘Why I Want a Wife’ by Judy Syfers.

Re-sit Question

06
Imagine that you are speaking to an audience of A level students as part of a series of introductory talks for General Studies on relevant contemporary issues. You have been asked to give a talk which conveys the main ideas of sexual equality as seen by feminists in the 1970s.

Write the text of your talk.

You should adapt the source material, using your own words as far as possible, without using direct quotations from the original text. Your talk should be approximately 300–400 words in length.

In your adaptation you should:

- use language appropriately to address purpose and audience
- write accurately and coherently, applying relevant ideas and concepts.

(25 marks)

Assessment Objective tested on this question:  AO4 (25 marks)

Some possible stylistic points students may use:

- appropriate use of register and tone for informative and interesting talk with a range of source material to help to convey the purpose of the talk
- sense of context – some rhetorical features and perhaps a clear sense of using the spoken mode
- conversion of first person narrative of source material; some use of second person, more likely use of third person narrative
- convincing sense of spoken mode
- clearly structured piece which deals with the material in a logical fashion, not necessarily following the order of the source material
- technical accuracy.
