Club Director-Potential Pitfalls

- Problem solving with the consumer (parents).
- Overseeing coaches.
- Egos..........
- Issues with a Board of Directors.
- Retention of Players (club jumping).
- If you don’t own your own facility, securing fields that are out of your control. Permits, sharing fields with recreational programs.
- Other potential issues?
Club Director’s Main Focus

• Development of PLAYERS. But that means different things to different people.
• Progress via proper education of everyone involved.
• Must be able to juggle all the nonsense and maintain quality training for teams.
• Adding more teams to the club.
• Player placement to “next level.”
• When making decisions must ask, “Is this in the best interest of the players.”
• Keeping people happy. Is this possible?
When making decisions about your club, this analysis chart is a good way to help clubs make decisions for the good of the masses.

Club Director-Misc Issues

• Must understand psychology of players, parents and coaches. Realize that there are different approaches to dealing with different people. ADAPT to Audience.

• Wears multiple hats and must be a Jack or Jill of all trades. (deep soccer background at all levels a must!)

• Business vs. Development.

• Must know how to communicate effectively the goals and means to achieve those goals to members.

• National Youth License background & “it’s for the kids” mentality.
My Opinions

• Size of the club determines how the hierarchy can be structured. Gender of club players as well determines structure.

• Location of club (Ohio vs. California) has influence over how things are run and “culture” of club.

• Club Director must have similar philosophy as Board Of Directors.

• Need defined roles amongst staff, and BOD so that the left hand knows what the right hand is doing.

• Club Director must be an effective communicator.
My Opinions

• Director must be a strong, confident and driven person with a broad soccer background and understanding that development takes time.

• LEADERSHIP is critical.

• Must get others to buy into mission and goals and establish a plan towards achieving those goals.

• Sacrificing development for win at all cost hinders the growth of those in the program. Must focus on creating soccer players not trophy collectors.

Leadership Styles

Autocratic

- In the autocratic style, the leader takes decisions without consulting with others. The decision is made without any form of consultation. In Lewin's experiments, he found that this caused the most level of discontent.

- An autocratic style works when there is no need for input on the decision, where the decision would not change as a result of input, & where the motivation of people to carry out subsequent actions would not be affected whether they were or were not involved in the decision-making.
Leadership Styles

Democratic

• In the democratic style, the leader involves the people in the decision-making, although the process for the final decision may vary from the leader having the final say to them facilitating consensus in the group.

• Democratic decision-making is usually appreciated by the people, especially if they have been used to autocratic decisions with which they disagreed. It can be problematic when there are a wide range of opinions & there is no clear way of reaching an equitable final decision.
Things to Keep in Mind

- 3 years ago, Baylor University's Health, Human Performance & Recreation Department released results from a survey of 6,000 youngsters in the lowest levels of youth sports, kids 6-8 years of age, who were involved in baseball, softball, football and soccer.

- Asked why they play sports, the overwhelming response from the players was: F-U-N. In fact, 62 percent of the children surveyed said "To have fun" was their main reason for participating.

- Of the 7 responses given, "To be with their friends" was second (11 percent), "To make new friends" was third (10 percent).
• "To become physically fit" was fourth (7 percent). "To improve their skills" or "To learn new skills" each drew 4 percent.

• At the bottom of the list was COMPETITION. Just 2 percent of kids responding said "To succeed or win" was the most important reason they played.

• Results of surveys by the highly-regarded Northeastern University Center for the Study of Sports in Society and the Institute for the Study of Youth Sports at Michigan State Univ. show the rate of attrition among teen athletes - better known as "burn out" – has risen steadily for the past two decades.
At present, nearly 42 percent of young people who began playing sports by age 8 have given up athletics by the time they reach 16.

Why? Among the reasons teenagers say they're "burned out" are: being pushed too hard by adults (i.e., parents and/or coaches); sports demands too much time; other kids are better athletes; peer pressure; and developing new interests. However, nearly 50 percent of young people who leave athletics by age 16 say they did so because: "It's not fun anymore."

"FUN" is the correlation between these studies.
Summary

• Effective DOC’s must be somewhere in the middle between Autocratic and Democratic in their leadership styles.

• DOC’s must understand why kids participate in soccer, and understand that development must be the goal. Success will be a by-product of solid development.

• DOC’s must stay up to date on the latest studies, education and soccer information. Also needs to constantly continue to learn and educate others within their organizations.

• Not one “perfect” way to organize a club.
