CALL FOR EXHIBITORS
Storm and surface water-related vendors have exhibited for years at many of the regional and national events in the general water-, engineering-, pollution-, government-, or construction-related fields. Until now, it’s been difficult—not to mention time consuming and expensive—to distinguish the real sales prospects from the others at these events.

Consider the results that would come from exhibiting at a highly focused event designed specifically for the surface water-quality professionals you’re after. Each attendee on the floor is a viable sales prospect, each session and discussion is relevant to their professional activities, and each exhibitor offers solutions to their concerns. With the accelerating rate of activity in the stormwater market, the need for a single event bringing together stormwater managers and engineers from around North America has never been stronger.
