May 30, 31, & June 1, 2015
(Saturday, Sunday, & Monday, the week after Memorial Day weekend)
Challenging, validating, and sharing; struggling with common dilemmas; discovering new solutions; guiding and supporting each other; and welcoming new providers to the field: These are the goals for presentations on laws and policy, juvenile justice, assessment & treatment, probation, community supervision & care, strategies for maximizing services with scarce resources, use of risk assessment and typology research in policy and treatment planning, protecting sibling relationships, transitions into successful adult independence for emancipating youth, neurological and psychiatric interventions, countering cultural influences of the internet & new technologies, and community safety.

About the Conference.....

Since the early 1980’s, providers serving sexually abusive children and adolescents have shared information through the National Adolescent Perpetration Network (NAPN). The NAPN conference continues to provide this forum. 30 years of work has informed enormous changes in our understanding of juvenile sexual offending, and best practices for prevention and intervention continue to evolve. Current juvenile models for treatment are very different from the modified adult programs of the 1980’s; by addressing factors that decrease the risks of sexual problems and abusive dynamics, while increasing the skills to support healthy relationships and successful outcomes, treatment is likely to achieve results far beyond the initial goals of containment and risk management. Good news abounds in discoveries from research that inform a more comprehensive holistic understanding of the functioning of youth.

NAPN 2015 welcomes diverse, multidisciplinary professionals, who deal with sexually abusive youth in a variety of roles and settings, to explore the implications of research and clinical experience, specifically relevant to the troubled and troubling youth who perpetrate sexual abuse..... With political and economic stresses, it is important we maximize the effective use of scarce resources and advocate for successful strategies in our communities.

“Reflections” will be a celebration of where we have been and lay a foundation for future developments, as we come together to share in the prevention of sexual abuse.

The need for continuing education continues in order to use news from research, case management and clinical practice to bring the most up to date services to the youth we treat and to prevent others from beginning to perpetrate sexual abuse. New information is constantly changing what we need to know and do in practice and the annual NAPN conference is all about sharing! NAPN 2015 will again provide a safe haven as we come together to renew our commitment to the prevention of sexual abuse and consider the future role of NAPN.

NAPN Conferences in Denver had traditionally been in February, but big snows throughout the country in recent years influenced the decision to move to later spring dates. The high country of the Rocky Mountains is nearby with easy access to hiking, fishing, or camping for those who might like to tack on a little vacation time.

The Sheraton Hotel again promises an enthusiastic welcome for a very affordable conference, with NAPN rooms at incredible prices for this locale, and the downtown area has continued to grow and develop even more fantastic venues for some rest and relaxation before or after the conference.

Plan NOW to come join us in Denver!

* Note: It is the policy of NAPN to avoid labeling youth as if their behavior defines who they are.
Knowing that most are more like other delinquents than adult sex offenders, and do not continue offending as adults, challenges us to avoid terms such as ‘sex offender’ etc.
We challenge our members to be thoughtful about how we refer to these youth in conversation and print.
