Directory of Contracted Programs

Introduction

In the early 1970’s, the Connecticut Department of Correction (CTDOC) was one of the first in the nation to establish contracts with private non-profit agencies to provide residential and nonresidential supervision and treatment/services for offenders. Since that time, the CTDOC has significantly expanded residential capacity and increased the number of nonresidential programs. CTDOC’s Mission Statement emphasizes the agency’s responsibility to “... provide offenders with opportunities that support restitution, rehabilitation and successful community reintegration”.

In State Fiscal Year 2006, CTDOC began the process of reviewing its community service network as a whole to evaluate offender access to appropriate programs in needed numbers, types and locations. These factors were then evaluated to determine future needs. In State Fiscal Year 2009, this evaluation culminated in a competitive procurement process which rebid all contracted community services and implemented a comprehensive statewide community network of services for CTDOC offenders returning to the community.

The current CTDOC Community Service Network defines specific types of residential and nonresidential programming in the community. Residential programs are available to male and female offenders releasing to the community under CTDOC supervision. These programs provide offenders with opportunities to begin reintegration in a structured residential setting. Most often, offenders are assisted with obtaining employment and have the opportunity to develop a savings plan prior to living independently. CTDOC’s residential programming includes Work Release, Substance Abuse, Mental Health, Women and Children, Sex Offender Treatment, Scattered-Site Supportive Housing and Temporary Supportive Housing programs.

Nonresidential programs are also available to male and female offenders releasing to the community under CTDOC supervision, both those residing independently and those residing in contracted residential programs. These programs provide offenders with day and/or evening services designed to assist them in identified areas of need. CTDOC-contracted nonresidential programs are categorized into four service areas: Behavioral Health, Employment, Social Reunification and Support Services.

Under current contract are 24 nonprofit community agencies providing 41 residential programs with a total of 1,088 residential beds (at an average cost of $77.00 per bed, per day) and 25 nonresidential programs. These agencies work in collaboration with CTDOC staff to ensure that offenders are provided with every opportunity to become successful and productive members of their communities.

This Directory provides a brief description of each CTDOC contracted community program. Included in the Directory is a summary of each residential and nonresidential program type as well as a breakdown of the geographic CTDOC Parole Districts and the programs available in each District. The Directory also provides contact information for CTDOC staff associated with community supervision and contract management.
Directory of Contracted Programs

Residential Program Glossary

Work Release: Programs designed to provide assistance to offenders in obtaining meaningful employment. Offenders reside in these programs for an average of 4 months under 24/7 onsite supervision. The goal upon discharge is for each offender to have stable employment, an acceptable place to live, and sufficient savings to live independently. Program staff assist offenders with needs such as obtaining identification, developing a savings plan, obtaining a GED, developing a resume, finding employment and securing housing. CTDOC holds contracts for 696 work release beds around the state, 50 of which are reserved for female offenders.

Substance Abuse: Programs designed to provide in-house treatment for offenders with a history of substance abuse. CTDOC contracts for both long-term (average of 6 months) and short-term (average of 30-45 days) substance abuse treatment programs. Both program types begin with a 30-45 day treatment component designed to assist offenders in dealing with their addictions in the outside world. During this time, offenders are not allowed to leave the program. Following this period, offenders placed in short-term programs are released to begin a CTDOC Work Release program, with outpatient substance abuse treatment provided by a contracted-CTDOC non-residential provider. Offenders placed in long-term programs, as a result of their history of abuse and addiction, remain in the program and are assisted with finding stable employment while receiving less intensive counseling on-site. The goal upon discharge is for each offender to have successfully completed the treatment component, obtained stable employment and made suitable independent living arrangements. CTDOC holds contracts for 47 long-term and 127 short-term substance abuse beds around the state, 15 of which are reserved for female offenders.

Mental Health: Programs designed to assist offenders with significant mental health needs. These programs are designed to operate in the same manner as substance abuse programs, with emphasis on treatment of mental health disorders and development of plans to ensure that offenders are linked to appropriate services when they release. The goal upon discharge is for offenders to have completed the treatment component, obtained stable employment (if able to work), and retained appropriate housing. Program staff work closely with local mental health providers to ensure that once offenders discharge, they are linked to services which assist them as they move to an independent residence.
Women & Children: CTDOC’s one program of this type is essentially a female work release program that allows children to live on-site with their mother. In addition to services available in traditional work release programs, offenders also receive assistance in reunification with their children, parenting classes, learning to care for a child while maintaining fulltime employment, and developing relationships with the Department of Children and Families when appropriate. CTDOC holds a contract for 26 women and children beds in the community.

Sex Offender Treatment: These residential programs provide a high-level of supervision for individuals convicted of a sexual offense, but eligible for release to the community prior to completion of their criminal sentence. The programs operate with an average of 4-6 months residence for each offender. The offender’s stay is broken out into 3 Phases of intensive treatment for the specific sexual offense, as well as case management, benefits and housing assistance, job readiness training and linkage to the contracted non-residential sex offender treatment provider who will assist the offender once released from the residential program. CTDOC holds a contract for 12 male sex offender treatment beds in the community.

Scattered-Site Supportive Housing: These programs generally consist of apartment-style living for 1-2 same gender offenders. Programs run 3-4 months in length and do not require on-site supervision. Apartments are fully furnished and basic needs such as food vouchers, bus tokens, clothing, and toiletries are initially provided. Program staff is responsible for administering a needs assessment for each offender, after which the offender is linked to DOC-contracted nonresidential programs and other local providers to ensure that needs such as permanent housing, employment, substance abuse treatment and family reunification are addressed. DOC holds contracts for 134 scattered-site supportive housing beds around the state.

Temporary Supportive Housing: These short-term programs are designed to assist offenders with obtaining immediate basic needs prior to their transition to independent living. Programs run 30-60 days in length and provide 24/7 onsite, supervised housing for offenders awaiting transfer to transitional supervision or offenders with less than 60 days left until the completion of their sentence. Program staff is responsible for administering a needs assessment for each offender after which the offender is linked to DOC-contracted nonresidential programs and other local providers to ensure that needs such as permanent housing, employment, identification, education, substance abuse treatment and family reunification are addressed. DOC holds contracts for 46 male temporary supportive housing beds around the state.
Nonresidential Program Glossary

Behavioral Health: These programs provide day and evening nonresidential treatment services. Programs offer substance abuse, intensive substance abuse, mental health and anger management treatment in individual and group counseling sessions. Program staff are responsible for administering assessments to determine the level of treatment needed, as well as administering random drug testing throughout the offender’s participation in treatment. CTDOC holds contracts for 15 behavioral health program locations throughout the state.

Employment: These programs provide day and evening nonresidential employment and vocational training services. Employment programs focus on 3 areas of service: Job Development, Job Readiness and Job Retention. Program staff work collaboratively with area employers to develop job opportunities targeted for offenders returning to the community. Program staff also work with offenders to provide assessment of current job skills, resume development classes, mock interviewing, and linkage to various vocational training programs. Once an offender has obtained employment, program staff work with both the offender and the employer to ensure that employment is maintained permanently. CTDOC holds contracts for 8 employment program locations throughout the state.

Social Reunification: These programs provide day and evening nonresidential reunification services. Each program offers an evidence-based domestic violence treatment component for offenders with current charges or a history of domestic violence. Program staff also work with offenders to develop and strengthen family relationships through the provision of couples counseling, family counseling and mentoring services. These programs work with offenders as well as their partners and children. CTDOC holds contracts for 8 social reunification program locations throughout the state.

Support Services: These programs provide day and evening nonresidential support services. Basic needs are addressed through a variety of case-management and support services to assist with reentry into the community. These programs provide tangible services such as transportation assistance, food vouchers and clothing while also providing financial management courses, housing assistance, benefits assistance and identification procurement. CTDOC holds contracts for 3 support service program locations throughout the state.

Exclusions:
A severe or persistent psychiatric condition or current physical addiction to drugs or alcohol requiring detoxification will be grounds for exclusion.

Length of Program:
Average length of services is 90 days. Maximum stay is 120 days.

Hours of Operation:
Monday-Friday: 9:00 AM to 6:00 PM

Description of Services Offered
The Connection Counseling Center provides evidence-based substance abuse, mental health, and co-occurring disorders treatment for adults. Anger Management groups are available for offenders in need, and drug testing is conducted randomly. Treatment offers opportunities to learn and practice new problem-solving and coping skills. Successful offenders experience improved home environments; more satisfactory relationships with themselves, their families, and their peers; improved stability; improved physical and emotional well-being and functioning; avoid future criminal activities and involvement in the legal and family services systems; and decrease the likelihood of being exposed to the traumatic events (homelessness, abuse, victimization, et cetera) common to their former lifestyles.
