Brand:
A brand is the way in which an organisation’s products, services are identified.

Service offer:
A service offer is what the organisation says it will offer its customers and is therefore what the customer comes to expect. A service offer covers e.g. the refund policy, its delivery times and the service it will offer.

Brand promise:
Branding is the way a product or service is recognised and is the promise made by the organisation to its customer. When a customer sees a particular brand they trust it assists them when making buying decisions as they know what to expect. If they do not recognise the brand they will have no clear expectations of the product or service and will almost be taking a risk on any purchase or usage.

Unit 239  Manage personal performance and development

UAN: L/506/1788
Level: 2
Credit value: 4
GLH: 18
Relationship to NOS: Management & Leadership (2012) National Occupational Standards:
• CFAM&LAA1 Manage yourself

Assessment requirements specified by a sector or regulatory body:
All Assessment Criteria must be met and assessed in line with Skills CFA Assessment Strategy.

Aim:
This unit aims to develop the knowledge and skills required to manage personal performance and development. Upon completion of this unit, learners will be able to manage their own performance, time and workload. They will also be able to identify their own development needs and fulfil a personal development plan.

Learning outcome
The learner will:
1. be able to manage personal performance

Assessment criteria
The learner can:
1.1 agree specific, measurable, achievable, realistic and time-bound (SMART) objectives that align with business needs with line manager
1.2 agree criteria for measuring progress and achievement with line manager
1.3 complete tasks to agreed timescales and quality standards
1.4 report problems beyond their own level of competence and authority to the appropriate person
1.5 take action needed to resolve any problems with personal performance.
Assessment Guidance

1.1
Objectives are targets to be implemented or completed, or standards of performance to be achieved and maintained.

Objectives provide focus and clear direction, and should be SMART:
- Specific: Clear, unambiguous, straightforward, understandable
- Measurable: Related to quantified or qualitative performance measures
- Achievable: With known resources
- Realistic: Linked to business needs
- Time-bound: Building-in completion date and review dates

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that he or she has:
- identified the relevant business needs of the organisation and agreed this with their line manager
- agreed appropriate and correct SMART objectives with their line manager that support those business needs

1.2
It is important and necessary to measure, or monitor, progress towards objectives with the line manager for a variety of reasons:
- It provides information to see if objectives are being achieved
- It enables any adjustments or improvements to the task to be carried out if they are required
- Monitoring performance with the line manager will provide valuable information for a ‘two-way’ appraisal or performance review.

The criteria used for measuring progress and achievement will depend upon the SMART objectives, and these criteria will need to be agreed with the line manager.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that he or she has agreed appropriate and correct criteria for measuring progress towards, and achievement of, SMART objectives with his or her line manager.

1.3
All tasks should be completed within the timescale agreed and to the quality standard required.

Other quality standards make reference to ‘conformance with requirements’, but the basis of all the definitions of ‘Quality’ is that the features affecting quality are capable of being tested and are thus objective measures of performance.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that tasks have been completed to agreed timescales and that they have also been completed to agreed and objective (or measurable) quality standards.
‘Competence’ is the ability of an individual to carry out a task properly to the required standard, whilst ‘authority’ allows its holder to act in certain ways designated by the organisation and to directly influence the actions of others through instructions.

Authority may be:
- Line Authority - reflects the organisational hierarchy
- Staff authority - the right to advise or assist those who possess line authority as well as other staff personnel
- Functional Authority - given to individuals who, in order to meet responsibilities in their own areas, must be able to exercise some control over organisation members in other areas.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that problems that are beyond both their own level of competence and their authority have been reported to the appropriate person.

Problems with personal performance may arise for a variety of reasons, such as:
- Unfair or unclear expectations as to the task or the individual’s role
- Medical issues
- Personal or family issues
- Job dissatisfaction
- Workplace conflict
- Inadequate knowledge or skills
- etc.

It is necessary to get to the root cause of any problem with personal performance, and to ensure that the action taken to resolve the problem is appropriate and within the organisation’s guidelines, policies and procedures, if applicable.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that the root cause of any problems with personal performance is identified, and that appropriate action is taken to resolve the problems.

Learning outcome

The learner will:

2. be able to manage their own time and workload

Assessment criteria

The learner can:

2.1 plan and manage workloads and priorities using time management tools and techniques

2.2 take action to minimise distractions that are likely to limit the effective management of time and the achievement of objectives

2.3 explain the benefits of achieving an acceptable “work-life balance”
Assessment Guidance

2.1
Examples of time management tools and techniques include:
- Covey Time (Task) Management Matrix
- ‘To-do’ list (monthly, weekly, daily)
- Scheduling tasks and activities
- Diary, paper-based or electronic
- Bespoke time-management documentation or software
- etc.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that he or she is managing workloads and priorities using appropriate time management tools and techniques.

2.2
Distractions that are likely to limit the effective management of time and the achievement of objectives include:
- Telephone interruptions
- Colleagues dropping in without appointments
- Meetings, both scheduled and unscheduled
- Lack of objectives, priorities, and deadlines
- Cluttered desk and personal disorganisation (not having the tools/resources/supplies at your disposal)
- Involvement in routine and detail that should be delegated to others
- Unclear, or lack of, communication and instruction
- Inability to say ‘no’
- etc.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that he or she has taken appropriate action to minimise the effects of workplace distractions that are likely to limit the effective management of time and the achievement of objectives.

2.3
There are benefits to the employer and to the employee from achieving an acceptable “work-life” balance.

Employer benefits include:
- reduced staff turnover
- lower recruitment and training costs, due to decreased turnover
- reduced absenteeism due to higher levels of well being
- gaining a reputation as a good employer or an employer of choice
- better attraction and retention of staff
- reduced stress levels amongst staff
- improved morale and job satisfaction
- greater staff loyalty and commitment
- improved productivity
Employee benefits include:
- a reduction in the impact of work on home and family life and vice versa
- reduced stress levels and higher levels of well being
- control over time management in meeting work-life commitments
- autonomy to make decisions regarding work-life balance
- increased focus, motivation and job satisfaction knowing that family and work commitments are being met
- increased job security from the knowledge that an organisation understands and supports workers with family responsibilities

In this criterion the learner is required to explain how benefits for the employee or for the employer follow from having an acceptable “work-life balance”; it is not acceptable to merely list a number of benefits.

Learning outcome

The learner will:
3. be able to identify their own development needs

Assessment criteria

The learner can:
3.1 identify organisational policies relating to personal development
3.2 explain the need to maintain a positive attitude to feedback on performance
3.3 explain the potential business benefits of personal development
3.4 identify their own preferred learning style(s)
3.5 identify their own development needs from analyses of the role, personal and team objectives
3.6 use feedback from others to identify their own development needs
3.7 agree specific, measurable, achievable, realistic and time-bound (SMART) development objectives that align with organisational and personal needs.

Assessment Guidance

3.1
Organisational policies relating to personal development will vary, depending upon the type and nature of the organisation.

Examples include:
- Staff Development Policy
- Training and Development Policy
- Professional Development Policy
- Organisational and Professional Development Policy
- etc.

In this criterion the learner is required to identify organisational policies relating to personal development.
3.2
Feedback is important to keep colleagues informed as to how well they are doing and to help them improve.

Properly given, feedback should be about performance, not personality, so the individual receiving the feedback should not allow emotions to be part of his or her reaction to feedback: a positive attitude is required in order to listen carefully to what is being said, to take the time to consider the value of the feedback, and to ask the person giving the feedback on how you can improve.

In this criterion the learner is required to describe what is meant by a positive attitude in order to then explain why it is necessary to maintain a positive attitude to feedback on performance.

3.3
‘Personal development’ is taken here to include ‘professional development’ in the sense of undertaking personal development to build human capital, skills and knowledge.

The potential business benefits of personal development include:
- improved workplace performance
- linking training and development activities to business needs and career development
- identifying talent and potential in the organisation
- improved staff morale and motivation
- introducing fresh ideas in the organisation
- linking training and development to SMART objectives and performance management
- etc.

In this criterion the learner is required to describe what is meant by personal development in order to then explain potential business benefits of personal development; it is not sufficient to merely list potential business benefits.

3.4
Individuals differ in how they learn, and there are a number of learning styles models that can be used to identify an individual’s learning style, perhaps the most widespread being the Honey and Mumford adaptation of Kolb’s experiential model:
- Activist
- Reflector
- Theorist
- Pragmatist

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that he or she has correctly identified their own learning style using an appropriate model.

3.5
Analysing own role and personal and team objectives is undertaken in order to identify the future development needs that are required to acquire the skills and knowledge for career development and for effective performance in the workplace both now and in the future.

Use will be made of internal documents such as job description, person specification, personal development plans, business plans, team plans and objectives, etc., and relevant documents will be analysed to identify development needs.

In this criterion the learner is required to analyse relevant documents, where available, relating to own role and personal and team objectives in order to identify own development needs.

3.6
Feedback from others is important in identifying development needs as good feedback enables individuals and groups to be aware of what they do and how they do it, and helps individuals learn, grow and develop.

Feedback may be formal, as in a performance review, or it may be informal, as in on-going advice or observations given outside the formal process.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that he or she has used examples of formal or informal feedback from others to identify development needs.

3.7
Having identified development objectives from feedback and analysing

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that appropriate and correct SMART development objectives that align with organisational and personal needs are agreed with the

| Relationship to NOS: | Management & Leadership (2012) National Occupational Standards:
|                | • CFAM&LDD1 Develop and sustain productive working relationships with colleagues |

Assessment requirements specified by a sector or regulatory body:
All Assessment Criteria must be met and assessed in line with Skills CFA Assessment Strategy.

Aim:
This unit aims to develop the knowledge and skills required to develop working relationships with colleagues, and introduces learners to the key principles underpinning effective team working. Upon completion of this unit, learners will be able to maintain effective working relationships with colleagues and work collaboratively to resolve problems.

Learning outcome
The learner will:
1. understand the principles of effective team working

Assessment criteria
The learner can:
1.1 outline the benefits of effective team working
1.2 describe how to give feedback constructively
1.3 explain conflict management techniques that may be used to resolve team conflicts
1.4 explain the importance of giving team members the opportunity to discuss work progress and any issues arising
1.5 explain the importance of warning colleagues of problems and changes that may affect them.

1.1
Benefits of effective team working include:
- greater flexibility within the team
- high morale
- increased efficiency
- mutual support
- better ideas from the team
- etc.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide an outline of the main features of benefits of effective team working; it is not acceptable to merely list benefits.

1.3
Conflict may be defined as the internal or external discord that occurs as a result of differences in ideas, values or beliefs of two or more people.

Conflict management is important in order to:
- maintain morale
- maintain performance standards
- minimise absenteeism
- promote a safe working environment
- maintain group cohesion
- etc.

Conflict management techniques that may be used to resolve team conflicts include:
- Win-Win (collaborating)
  - Attempting to identify the underlying concerns in order to find an alternative that satisfies everyone
- Compromise
  - Working to a mutually-acceptable solution that partially satisfies everyone
- Forcing
  - Using formal authority or coercion to get one’s own way at the expense of others
- Avoiding
  - Not addressing the conflict, withdrawing from a threatening situation
- Accommodating
  - Neglecting own concerns to satisfy others

In this criterion the learner is required to explain how conflict management techniques may be used to resolve team conflicts. (Using examples may make this more relevant.)

1.4
Discussing work progress and any issues arising with team members provides an opportunity to:
- acknowledge team achievements and celebrate success
- discuss strengths and identify areas for improvement
clarifying and agreeing any steps required to improve performance
• identify how systems, procedures, work methods might be improved
• etc.

In this criterion the learner is required to describe reasons that explain the importance of giving team members the opportunity to discuss work progress and any issues arising. (Using examples may make this more relevant.)

1.5

Warning colleagues of problems and changes that may affect them allows issues to be addressed before they get out of hand and are still manageable, and allows possible solutions to be explored as opposed to merely reacting to a situation.

Failure to warn might also threaten the trust relationship with colleagues, who will typically assume the worst if there is a failure to communicate.

In this criterion the learner is required to describe reasons that explain the importance of warning colleagues of problems and changes that may affect them. (Using examples may make this more relevant.)

<td>Colleagues want to be appreciated, and recognising their contribution to the achievement of team objectives lets them know that their efforts are noticed and valued.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Praise should be timely, direct, personal and specific, with colleagues being told exactly what they do well and why their contribution is appreciated.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>There are numerous ways to recognise an colleague's contribution, and the praise must be given in a way that is meaningful to the colleague: some colleagues may prefer to be praised in public, for example, whilst others may be more comfortable with being praised in private, and some colleagues will find it more meaningful to have their contribution recognised by a higher-level manager.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that he or she has recognised in an appropriate and meaningful way the contribution of colleagues to the achievement of team objectives.

2.2
Colleagues will be better motivated to complete allocated tasks if they feel they are being listened to and that they are appreciated as part of a team.

Treating colleagues with respect, courtesy and fairness is fundamental in creating a positive climate within the team in order to influence team members to feel motivated.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide appropriate evidence that he or she has treated colleagues with respect and fairness and courtesy.

2.3
Fulfilling agreements is one way to ensure you develop working relationships with colleagues, within your own organisation and within other organisations, which are productive in terms of supporting and delivering your work and that of your organisation.

Colleagues should be informed when agreements have been fulfilled, or advised promptly of any difficulties or where it will be impossible to fulfil agreements.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence of correctly and appropriately fulfilling agreements made with colleagues.

2.4
Providing support to colleagues might include:
- explaining policies, procedures, task requirements
- helping with their workload
- problem-solving
- obtaining additional resources
- providing encouragement
- providing constructive feedback that focuses on issues and solutions, not personalities or blame

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence of appropriate support to colleagues and constructive feedback to two or more colleagues.
Learning outcome
The learner will:
3. be able to collaborate with colleagues to resolve problems

Assessment criteria
The learner can:
3.1 take others' viewpoints into account when making decisions
3.2 take ownership of problems within own level of authority
3.3 take action to minimise disruption to business activities within their own level of authority
3.4 resolve problems within their own level of authority and agreed contribution.

Assessment Guidance

3.1
Empathy is the ability to identify and understand another's situation, feelings and viewpoints, and to 'put yourself in the other person's shoes'.

Successful leaders and managers work hard to understand others' viewpoints in a particular situation. They acknowledge others' viewpoints when making decisions and consider the impact of their choices on the wellbeing and interests of others.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that he or she understands the viewpoints of colleagues in particular situations and has taken their viewpoints into account when making decisions on those situations.

'Level of authority' refers to the different hierarchical management levels in an organisation and the duties and responsibilities assigned to each of those levels.

The more senior roles in an organisation will have greater authority to give instructions and make decisions and to ensure compliance with organisational policies and procedures, and problems that lie outside own level of authority must be referred to a more senior manager at the appropriate level.

The authority given to a role is usually formalised in a job description, which will generally include the roles and responsibilities of the job as well as the job-holder's direct report.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that he or she has taken ownership of problems within own level of authority.

3.3
Business activities are activities that provide a product or service that customers require, and a disruption to business activities could have far-reaching consequences for the organisation, such as:
- loss of income
- loss of reputation
- loss of customers
- penalty payments for not meeting deadlines
- failure of the business

It is therefore the responsibility of everyone in an organisation to take appropriate and effective action, within their own level of authority, to minimise disruption to business activities.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that he or she has taken effective and appropriate action, within own level of authority, to minimise disruption to business activities.

3.4 ‘Resolve problems’ is taken here to mean the resolution of problems relating to working relationships with colleagues.

To resolve a problem is to find an effective and satisfactory answer or solution, and a problem with working relationships with colleagues may be resolved formally or informally, depending upon the nature and extent of the problem.

If the problem with a working relationship is a relatively minor issue, then an informal resolution may be possible.

If, however, the problem is more serious, then it may be necessary to use the organisation’s formal disciplinary or grievance procedures.

If the formal procedures are used, then each procedure should specify the level of authority appropriate to each stage.

In this criterion the learner is required to provide evidence that he or she has appropriately resolved, either formally or informally, problems relating to working relationships with colleagues. The evidence should additionally demonstrate the learner’s agreed contribution within the learner’s own level of authority.
