Entry to the Research Centre, Bookshop & Library is at 158 King Street. There is a ramp available, on request, for wheelchair access.

King Street is on Bus route Nos. 1, 2, and. No 40 operates between Kingswells Park & Ride, Aberdeen Royal Infirmary, City Centre, Bridge of Don Park & Ride at the Aberdeen Exhibition & Conference Centre and Dubford. For buses from Peterhead and Fraserburgh, alight at the stop opposite Morrisons. Street parking is very limited in neighbouring streets –. There is a multi-storey car park nearby accessed from Park Street. See map on back cover.

There are toilets and washbasins. A toilet for the disabled is located at a nearby supermarket. For a small donation, tea and coffee are available in a small kitchen. Snacks, brought by members, can also be eaten there. Consumption of any drinks or food (including sweets) is not permitted elsewhere in the Centre. Smoking is not allowed in the building.

We have limited floor-space. To avoid inconvenience to other members, please do not bring small children, pets, prams, pushchairs or bulky luggage into the Centre. Access to the basement Library is only via stairs.

Mobile (or Cell) phones must be switched off prior to entering the Centre, but calls can be made outside the front entrance. To avoid breach of copyright laws, members must request permission to use digital cameras to copy microfilms or microfiches. These copies should be for personal use only, and not posted on any Internet site.

None of our library books may be borrowed or removed. Many library titles are for sale in the bookshop.

Only pencils can be used in the Library.

Our volunteer staff are available for assistance and advice. However, their time is limited, so members are encouraged to carry out their own research wherever possible.

We hope that our service is satisfactory at all times. Complaints or suggestions can be made in person, or in writing to the Secretary, and will be acknowledged.

Introducing the Society

Aberdeen & North-East Scotland Family History Society was founded in 1978.

It is a member of the Scottish Association of Family History Societies (SAFHS) and is a registered charity No. SC012478. S.C.I.O.

The Society premises are located at:
158–160 King Street  Research Centre, Bookshop and Library
164 King Street  Publications Department
136 King Street  Administration.

Since its foundation 34 years ago, the story of ANESFHS has been one of steady progress. A modestly sized Research Centre opened at 152 King Street, Aberdeen in 1986. This soon became inadequate, and was sold. In July 1993, the Society moved six doors up to much larger premises at No. 164. Just three months later, No. 160 was also acquired – and, in April 1994, the basements of the two properties were linked to form a walk-through library. No. 158 was leased in October 2000, and in January 2002 was merged with No. 160 to become the new Research Centre. The Library was also extended into the basement of No. 158. For some years, administration of the Society was undertaken in any space that was available in the storeroom at No. 164. No. 136 King Street, about 50 yards away – is used for meetings, beginners’ classes, storage and chart printing.

The current subscription entitles you to free use of all the Society’s facilities. Please refer to the guidelines listed on the inside front cover. The Research Centre is staffed by a team of experienced volunteer helpers, who will show you how to start your research. You may not find anyone famous in your family tree, but will still be thrilled by the discoveries you make as you travel back through the centuries. A quarterly Journal is sent to all members in February, May, August and November. Members are encouraged to contribute articles; and the Queries section can be of great help if you think you have reached a “dead end” in your research. Members also receive a Membership Card in February.

Meetings, with a guest speaker, are held on the third Saturday of each month: January to May, and September to November. The venue is the Unitarian Church Hall in Skene Terrace (near the Central Library), at 2:30pm. Non-members are also welcome, and admission is free. There is also a bookstall, and refreshments are provided. In June, there is an excursion to record MIs in a graveyard; and a Christmas Social is held in December.

Where to Begin

TALK – to grandparents and other elderly relatives. What can they tell you about their own lives and those of deceased relatives? Sometimes they will pass on some treasured “family tradition”, which may turn out to be, at best, exaggerated and, at worst, complete fiction … but it will be fun finding out if there is any truth in the story. Unfortunately, there may also be a “skeleton in the family cupboard” which they may wish to keep to themselves! If they have old family photographs, ask them to identify the people pictured.

The next part of this guide lists all the information found on Scottish Birth, Marriage and Death Certificates. These have been issued since 1st January 1855, when Registration Offices were first established in Scotland. Look at your own birth certificate and note down all the details. If you don’t have one, you can buy a copy from the Registration Office where your birth was recorded or from the Registrar General in Edinburgh if you were born in Scotland. If you were adopted, and are at least 17 years old, this is still possible. Having obtained the details of your parentage, you do the same for your mother and father, and their parents and grandparents, if the certificates still exist. Once you have managed to trace your line(s) back to 1855, your main sources for earlier records will be the Old Parish Registers (OPRs).

Birth, Marriage and Death certificates (BMDs)

Civil registration in Scotland began in 1855. Initially, an enormous amount of information was recorded. The Registrars complained about their workload, which resulted in 1856–60 certificates having much less information. From 1861, some of the deleted information was reinstated. Information given on each certificate is as follows:

BIRTH Certificate

1. Name and sex
2. When and where born
3. Name and occupation of father
4. Maiden name of mother
5. Date and place of marriage of parents (except 1856–60)
6. Name and relationship of informant, and address if not present
7. When and where registered, and name of registrar
8. Other children of parents (1855 only)
9. Parents’ ages and places of birth (1855 only).

MARRIAGE Certificate
1. When and where married
2. How married – Church of Scotland etc.
3. Names and occupations of bride and groom, marital status and relationship (if any)
4. Ages of bride and groom (birthplace, where and when registered – 1855 only)
5. Usual residences
6. Names of both sets of parents, occupations of fathers, maiden and subsequent surnames of mothers, and whether alive or dead
7. Names of minister, registrar and witnesses
8. When and where registered
9. Number of children by any other marriage (1855 only).

DEATH Certificate
1. Name, sex and address of the deceased, and marital status
2. When and where died
3. Age and occupation
4. Names of parents, with father’s occupation and mother’s maiden surname (and any subsequent surnames), and whether alive or dead
5. Cause of death, and name of doctor who certified death
6. Name and relationship and residence of informant (name only – 1855)
7. When and where registered, and signature of registrar
8. Place of birth and length of time in district (1855 only)
9. Name(s) of spouse(s), if married (omitted 1856–60)
10. Issue in order of birth: names and ages (1855 only)
11. Burial place and name of undertaker (1855–60).

Statutory records can be accessed either at the “ScotlandsPeople Centre” in Edinburgh, at the local registrar or at www.scotlandspeople.gov.uk

Data Protection restricts access on line to Births (100 yr.) Death (50 yr.) and Marriage (75 yr.)
England and Wales: Civil registration began in 1837, but certificates contain less information than those in Scotland. ANESFHS holds Birth, Marriage and Death indexes on microfiche for 1837–2002; and these are also available online at freebmd or ancestry. They are recorded in quarterly indexed volumes. Prior to 1866, no ages are given for deaths. Maiden surnames are not given at all.

Ireland: Civil registration began in 1863 and follows the English pattern, though free births, marriages and deaths can be ordered on the NA website.

Old Parish Registers (OPRs)

The most important sources for pre-1855 family history research in Scotland are the Old Parish Registers -- the OPRs. These were compiled from records of Baptisms and Marriages kept by the Session Clerks in Church of Scotland parish churches.

The OPR indexes, and images of the records, can be accessed online at www.scotlandspeople.gov.uk, or at our Research Centre on microfiche and microfilm. These are listed in strict alphabetical sequence, with the spellings as they appear in the parish register – so always be ready to look for unusual variations of your sought-after surnames.

In the main, the OPRs contain only the records of the established Church of Scotland. Some session clerks, however, also recorded other denominations – Episcopalian, Free Church and others. Please note that these indexes are only a finding aid, and are not infallible. Deaths or burials are listed sometimes, but are typically fragmentary. ANESFHS, however, has compiled a computerised Burial Index from the OPRs. See “Monumental Inscriptions (MIs) and Burial Records” on page 12.

The Society holds the OPR films for every one of Scotland’s parishes, from Unst in Shetland to the Mull of Galloway. Sometimes the original handwriting is faded or not easily readable. Some registers start earlier, and some are in better condition than others. A Centre helper will print any pages you require at a cost of 35p per page. It will be helpful if you can take a note of the Frame Number, where it exists, at the top of the page you want copied. Digital images of most surviving parishes in Scotland are available at the City Archives by appointment.

Kirk Session records Kirk Session records sometimes have information on marriages, and always feature paternity cases. Those for St Nicholas is 1562-1940, St Clement 1828-1965 and Aberdeen Presbytery (1720 - 1995) can be consulted at Aberdeen City Archives.
Old Machar (1383–1952) are available in original book form at St Machar’s Cathedral by appointment only.
Digital images of the others are available at the National Records of Scotland in Edinburgh, and at Aberdeen City Archives.
International Genealogical Indexes (IGIs)

Supplementary indexes (called IGIs) of births, baptisms and marriages have also been compiled on computer and microfiche from various sources: OPRs, some post-1855 civil records, wills, censuses, family bibles – or any kind of record available – from the 16th century to 1875. In addition to the OPR, the Society holds the following indexes in its main fiche cabinet at No. 158 King Street:

IGI 1981 Scotland: in Surname order for the whole country. (Counties are not indexed separately, and this index is far from complete.)

IGI 1981 England: in County and Surname order.

IGI 1988 Scotland: in County and Surname order.

IGI 1988: various countries, including Denmark, Finland, Germany, Mexico, Norway, Sweden and the USA.

IGI 1992 Scotland: in County and Surname order.

IGI 1992 Wales: do.

IGI 1992 Ireland: do.

The layout and format of IGI microfiches are similar to that of the OPR indexes.

The main advantage of IGIs is that they list all the various spellings of a surname together. The 1981 IGI for Scotland is also particularly useful if you don’t know which county your ancestor came from. The 1992 IGI also contains information submitted by researchers – and some records may be of dubious accuracy. The 1981, 1988 and 1992 IGIs should all be consulted, as the information they contain is not identical.

Ancestor Charts

A blank pedigree chart is given to all members when they join the Society, and can also be downloaded from our website. When a chart is returned, every surname and placename on it is indexed. Even incomplete charts will be accepted and indexed, so it is never too soon to send it in. When the member later submits a fuller chart, the original can be discarded. Presently, there are over 200,000 entries in this index.

The form contains spaces for 30 names. Names 15–30 are for great-great-grandparents, each of whom can be transferred to a Continuation Sheet. Most researchers manage to get back to c. 1750 with at least one of their lines.
The Ancestor Chart Index* has been on the ANESFHS website for some time. The huge task of scanning every one of the charts is under way, and they too will soon be available for downloading. Together, they are a superb aid in finding others interested in the names you are researching, and who may be related to you. Members can still order print-outs of sheets featuring relevant surnames on any chart to be sent by post. Please specify name of interest as well as the membership number required.

Photocopies of Ancestor Charts or of unpublished Mls:

There is a £1.00 search fee, plus print-out costs of 15p each page. Remember that some ancestor charts have more than one page, so please specify the surname(s) you want. Please do not ask for more than 10 charts at a time.

The index includes membership numbers for people long dead, long lapsed, or no longer easily identified. You must write to us for copies of the charts. We no longer produce a Membership List because of Data Protection concerns.

Research Requests and Costs

The Society has a small team of volunteers who are prepared to undertake research for out-of-area members.

When we receive your research request, whether by post, e-mail to research@anesfhs.org.uk or by a research enquiry through the Society’s website (www.anesfhs.org.uk), it will be placed on a waiting list. There is usually a wait of about 4–6 weeks, but that may be longer if a large number of requests arrive at the same time. It is only fair to point out that our volunteer researchers are not professional genealogists. They are family historians with many years of experience researching their own and other members’ family histories. They also have jobs, commitments and other interests out with their voluntary work for the Society. Some queries require research in depth, but others can be answered quickly. We may find a lot of information, or we may find very little. We may not be able to find what you are seeking – but, irrespective of the results, we still have to charge you for the time taken to search for information.

We can search various sources in the Society, including:

- On our networked computers: Family Search IGI; the 1881 census for the whole of the UK; the pre-1855 OPR Burials Index for North-East Scotland; Ancestry.com Library edition (which has all UK censuses 1841–1901, with print-outs of English and Welsh census images available; also 1911 English and Welsh, only viewable by household; no Scottish 1911); various CDs including Soldiers Died in the Great War, British Newspaper Archive and the Society’s Library catalogue.

We can also search:

- OPR fiche for the whole of the UK, plus many countries worldwide
- English birth, marriage and death indexes on fiche, which we hold from 1837 to 2002
- Local newspapers for Aberdeen, Aberdeenshire, Banffshire and Kincardineshire
- St Nicholas MIIs on microfilm, including the index.

Out with the Society, we can visit:

- Aberdeen City Archives
- Aberdeen Central Library
- Aberdeen University Library
- Aberdeen Register Office.

These searches are done at the discretion of the researcher and if time permits.

We have introduced a new scale of charges for research based on the time taken to do the research.

Cost: £10 per hour, with a minimum charge of £2.50 for a 15-minute search.

Other costs are:

- Print-outs from OPR or census films: 40p per page
- Print-outs from OPR fiche: 40p per page
- Print-outs from computer: 15p per page
- Photocopies from Society Library material: 15p per page
- Photocopies from Aberdeen City Archives: at cost (currently 50p per page)
- Printouts from local newspapers in Central Library:at cost (from 20p per page)

Transcriptions of Births, Marriages and Deaths:
We can transcribe births post-1914, marriages post-1939 and deaths post-1964 for anywhere in Scotland. This involves a volunteer researcher going to the Registrar’s Office and copying details of certificates by hand. The notes then have to be typed up. We keep a list of requests for certificate details – and, when we have sufficient to justify the Registrar’s fee, the volunteer will make an appointment to do the research.

Cost to search for and transcribe each certificate: £3.00

Notes

- Postage and packaging will be added to all these charges.
- Please do not send money in advance. We will invoice you along with the results of the research sent by post. If you have an e-mail address, we may send you the results by e-mail with the cost of the research along with a reference number, which should be quoted on payment to the Society. You can specify a ceiling cost, e.g. “not more than £20”.

All charges include VAT at the current rate.

Please note that you must be a current member when you ask for research.

Ordering from the Society

We are delighted to help all our members, including those who live at some distance. Prices and weights are on our website. If you wish to order items from different departments, e.g. computer print-outs, publications, research etc., please ensure that each request bears your name, address and membership number and is submitted separately. Each request can then be dealt with by the relevant department. Orders cannot be accepted over the phone. Either write or email to publications@anesfhs.org.uk

Censuses

The first properly organised censuses of Scotland, England and Wales took place in 1841. Previous censuses merely recorded the number of people at any particular location, and the names of those enumerated have not usually survived. However, names do appear on the 1801 Peterhead census and later ones in Galston, Ayrshire. There was also a detailed census in 1821 in some Orkney parishes. Since 1841, a national census has been conducted in the first year of every decade, except in 1941. Because of a 100-year confidentiality rule, the most recent census available for research is the one held in 1911, and we won’t be able see 1921 personal information until 2022 unless the law changes.

The available censuses were held on:

- 7th June 1841
- 4th April 1881
- 31st March 1851
- 5th April 1891
- 8th April 1861
- 31st March 1901
- 3rd April 1871
- 2nd April 1911

The enumerators’ handwriting and spelling varied considerably. Be warned – in many cases, surnames and place names have been misread in transcriptions on some Internet websites.

1841 census:
1. Name of each person resident in the house on the night.
2. Age to lowest 5 above 15 years, e.g. those aged 20–24 would be listed as “20”, those aged 25–29 as “25”, etc.
3. Occupation is sometimes given.
4. Whether born in the county (Y = yes, N = no), or in E = England, W = Wales, I = Ireland, etc.
1851–1901 censuses:
1. Name.
2. Relationship to the head of the household.
3. Marital status.
4. Exact age – but not always as claimed.
5. Occupation.
6. County/Parish of birth in Scotland, or country of birth, e.g. England, Wales, Ireland.
7. From 1861: Other details: e.g. employment status, physical or mental handicaps, Gaelic-speaking, etc.

1911 census:
As above, with additional questions:
- Number of persons in house.
- Particulars as to marriage: single, married, widower or widow; for couples, duration of marriage; children born alive; children still living.
- Industry or service with which worker is connected.
- Nationality if born in a foreign country.

“Scotland’s People” is the only place to access the 1911 Scotland census online.

Microfilms at the ANESFHS Research Centre:

1841–1901 censuses: for every parish in Scotland (except a few for 1901).

1881 census Indexes for Scotland, England and Wales on fiche and computer.

England & Wales: The censuses contain the same information as those in Scotland. The censuses for 1841, 1851, 1861, 1871 and 1891 are available, for each county, on CD-ROM or on www.ancestry.com where the original can be viewed.

Australia: Available on fiche are: NSW – Births and Deaths 1856–1905; Vic. – Births 1853–1913, Marriages 1853–1930 and Deaths 1854–1960; Census records for other States; and various other Australian records and directories.

New Zealand: Births, marriages and cemetery records.

Army, Navy and Air Force: Army births, deaths and marriages; navy deaths; RAF deaths; location of army registers; muster rolls; military courts and other military information are also accessible on fiche. Other sources can be found in the Library and on CD-ROM (see below).

Monumental Inscriptions (MIs) and Burial Records
The term generally used by family historians for the text on gravestones is “Monumental Inscriptions”. The Society is progressively recording and publishing lists of graveyard and cemetery inscriptions in the North-East. So far, over 100 booklets have been published covering nearly 130 separate burial grounds. Each booklet is fully indexed by surname and stone number, with a detailed plan of the graveyard. You will find them listed on our web site www.anesfhs.org.uk/publ.php

The booklets can save you hours of searching in a graveyard, at a cost of only a few pounds. About 100 other kirkyards have been partly surveyed and, in draft form, are available for reference in the Society’s Library. Also available for sale are MI booklets from elsewhere in Scotland, including Orkney and Shetland.

Try to obtain Death Certificates of relatives. These could guide you to a gravestone, which may list other family members buried there.

MI Index. The index can be found on the Society’s homepage under “MI Index”. There are three different sections to this:

1. Online index to Memorial Inscriptions in published booklets
2. Databank with several datasets, including St Nicholas Burials 1666–1793 and St Nicholas Kirk Session Accounts 1602–1705.
3. MIIs available on Kindle

OPR Burial Index. All the death and burial information recorded on the Old Parish Registers for Aberdeen, Aberdeenshire, Banffshire, Kincardineshire and Moray has been indexed by the Society, and can be viewed on the Research Centre computers. These records include the charges made by the church for hiring a “mortcloth”, which could be used to cover the coffin prior to burial. There is also an index to cemetery records including St Peter’s, Peterhead up to 2000 and Nellfield up to 1950. Cemeteries are burial grounds managed by a parish or town council, and which were not necessarily “attached” to a church. Deceased Online (www.deceasedonline.com) has an ever-increasing list of indexes to cemetery records throughout the UK. In particular, there are records for St Peter’s Cemetery, Aberdeen, Old Machar Churchyard and St Clement’s Churchyard for various dates.

Moray. The Moray Burial Ground Research Group was formed in 2003 with the challenging task of surveying all 140 burial grounds in Moray, which now also includes about two-thirds of the former county of Banff, including Buckie, Cullen, Keith, Dufftown, Aberlour, Tomintoul and Glenlivet. Moray Council’s LIBINDX also has a Cemetery Explorer service, and both can be accessed online.

McKirdy Index. This is being compiled in New Zealand, on fiche, and eventually will record all the deaths in Scotland from 1855 to 1875. The fiches for the counties of Bute, Clackmannanshire, Kinross-shire, Lanarkshire (1855–57 only), Peebles-shire and Sutherland are currently available.

Library

The Library occupies the linked basements of 158, 160 and 164 King Street, and is accessed via a stair from the Research Centre. There are around 5,500 books on its shelves, plus journals from other societies worldwide, magazines, ancestor charts and maps.

When you go downstairs, the first sections you reach contain Censuses and Monumental Inscriptions. “Census” means any list of people in a place at a time, not just the official 1841–1901 census returns. The MIs consist of both published booklets and drafts of work in progress, and there are also other death records and wills. The green files are packed full of ancestor charts which have been submitted by members over the years. The indexes to them, which are periodically updated, are in the accompanying red files, and can also be consulted on the Society’s website. Close by is the Strays card index, containing the names of thousands of North-East folk who lived and died elsewhere, and two bays of books on Scottish Family Histories.

The next “room” has boxed back copies of journals from most Scottish family-history societies, with others from England and Wales, Australia and Canada. There is also a range of genealogical magazines. Air, Military & Naval includes books on war, regiments, fishing and Forces personnel research. There are photographs and name lists of War Memorials in the North East and Angus on the right hand end of the top shelf of this section. In front of these shelves is the map cabinet, with drawers containing large-scale flat maps, which have been laminated for easy reference. Beside the cabinet, there is a photocopier for use by members. On the opposite wall are the Church Histories & Religious Research and the Parish/Church Registers sections. These can be particularly valuable to those who have ancestors who were members of other denominations. The Fasti Ecclesiae Scoticane lists Church of Scotland ministers from 1560. The Biography section contains items on local and national biography, graduates and professional lists.

The third part of the Library contains Scotland/Scottish Nation with general books on Scotland, description, history and social history, occupations and transport. Next to this is the Area Research section for Scotland, England, Wales and Ireland. Overseas Records deals mainly with Australia, Canada, New Zealand and the USA, but also has works on Europe and Asia. The Scottish Counties section is divided into three: Aberdeen City, Aberdeenshire and the rest of Scotland. At the end of this, there are display shelves for new items of Library stock.

Geographical has Francis H. Groome’s 1882 Ordnance Gazetteer of Scotland; Victorian and Pathfinder folded maps; parish lists of places, farms and crofts; and books giving the derivation of placenames in Scotland. Behind the librarian’s desk is Quick Reference, where you can find a variety of dictionaries. Genealogical Directories & Members’ Interests list who is researching what nationally as well as worldwide. Heraldry, Clans & Tartans has information on clan septs and family coats-of-arms. Research Manuals include information on computers, family and local history, newspapers, occupations, photographs and record offices.
Obviously, this is only a brief summary of the wealth of knowledge held in our library. Members are strongly encouraged to take a walk downstairs to look at what is on offer. Remember that much of the material on the shelves will not appear on any Internet site. The Library Catalogue will help you find what you need. You can search for items using a keyword or a word in the title, a geographical location or a subject. Or you can just enter a word from an area of interest and see what comes up. This makes it much easier to identify the resources which are relevant to your own particular research. The catalogue can be accessed from any of the computers on the ground floor of the Research Centre.

Computers and the Internet

In recent years, a vast array of information has been made available on the internet. It is important to realise that many of the transcriptions have been done by people who have no knowledge of local or family names. Wherever possible, therefore, original source documents should be consulted.

The Society always has to stress that the use of the Internet is no substitute for on-the-ground research, and that it will always be to the researcher's advantage to visit the ANESFHS Research Centre at some stage. Our main strengths are our local knowledge and large stock of reference books and other material, which put "meat on the bones" of the facts already known about the sought-after families. Rather than sitting in front of a PC at home, it will be infinitely more enjoyable, productive and worthwhile for ancestor-hunters to visit our Research Centre. In a relaxed, friendly environment, they can use our computers and film/fiche readers and, of course, have a chat with our knowledgeable staff and other members. It can also be cheaper, in the long run, to carry out most of your research at our Centre, where a print-out of a census return will cost a matter of pence.

CD-ROMs
The Society has an extensive library of CD-ROMs, adjacent to the computers, which include various records from Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Netherlands, India, South Africa, USA, Sweden as well as more local information.

Newspapers
The Society currently subscribes to the British Newspaper Archive, where newspapers for the whole of the UK can be accessed online. In addition, we have acquired microfilms of several Aberdeen and North-East Scottish newspapers. At present, the Society stocks films of the following:
Aberdeen Journal (City of Aberdeen; Press & Journal forerunner) 1747–1900
Banffshire Journal (Banff; index for 1847–52 available) 1845–1900
Forres, Elgin & Nairn Gazette 1844–1907
Fraserburgh Advertiser 1858–1906
Stonehaven Journal & Kincardineshire Advertiser 1847–1917

When you say “newspapers”, most genealogists immediately think of obituaries or birth and marriage notices. In early editions of most newspapers, however, it was generally only the well-off who could afford (or were deemed to be sufficiently important) to have their notices included in the columns. So, if you were hoping to see a birth announcement for your Macduff great-great-granddad in a 19th-century Banffshire Journal, you will probably be disappointed.

On the other hand, small provincial newspapers usually had good coverage of local news, including photographs of various events and locations, arrests and appearances in the Sheriff Courts, legal notices (including divorces), fires and accidents, advertisements and general “gossip”. Some papers in port cities carried a Marine Intelligence column, which listed ships arriving and departing and other information. Deaths of people such as prominent local personalities and World War I casualties were usually given detailed obituaries. Sometimes the names of those attending a funeral were listed.

Maps

The Society has a wide selection of maps and gazetteers. Of particular use to researchers is the Parish Map series, which show the OPR date ranges of births, marriages and deaths, under each parish name, for the whole of Scotland. For instance, Map No. 4 covers all the parishes in Aberdeen City, Aberdeenshire, Kincardine, Banffshire, Moray and Nairnshire. A similar series, but with much less information, has been produced by the Institute of Heraldic and Genealogical Studies.

The Map Cabinet contains five drawers of large-scale flat laminated maps. They are: Ordnance Survey Landranger 1:50,000 (1999–2003); OS 1" to the mile (1898–1904); Thomson’s Atlas of Scotland (1832) – Aberdeen, Banff and Kincardine (1822); Town Plans; OS 1:500 City of Aberdeen N and NW (1867); OS 1:500 City of Aberdeen E and SW (1867).

Also available are a series of Victorian Ordnance Survey Maps of Scotland, folded, 1" to the mile. These were surveyed in the 1860s and published in the late 1890s. There are also folded OS street plans (dating from 1899–1904) of Aberdeen City suburbs and other towns. See the “Library” listing (page 13) for details of other maps and gazetteers. Modern street plans and Clan and Tartan maps can also be bought from the Society.

The Society’s most prized possession is the monumental The Great Map: The Military Survey of Scotland 1747–55, by William Roy. The 400-page book, which also has a gazetteer, was published in 2007.

When searching for the precise location of a particular farm, croft or house, researchers should also consult books of placenames, Valuation Rolls, Registers of Sasines, 1696 Poll Books and the Register of the Great Seal (1306–1660), which can narrow the search down to a particular parish.

Poor Relief Records

During the period 1845–1930, parish councils and parochial boards kept records of people applying for Poor Relief (an early form of social security). Where the registers still exist, ANESFHS has compiled separate indexes to: (1) Register of Applicants; (2) General Register of the Poor, i.e. the names of those receiving Poor Relief; (3) Register of Children receiving Poor Relief through a guardian. These indexes (one per register per parish) can be consulted at our King Street premises and also at Aberdeen City Archives in Dunbar Street, at the Library and Information Service in Oldmeldrum and at Moray Archives in Elgin.

All that survives for Aberdeen City is a record of the Minutes for St Nicholas Parish 1895–1948. Along with original registers for many Aberdeenshire, Banffshire, Kincardineshire and Moray parishes, these are held at Aberdeen City Archives in Dunbar Street, Old Aberdeen.

The records for Aberdeenshire, Banffshire, Kincardineshire and Morayshire have now been digitised and available to view on computers at Aberdeen City archives

Those for some Moray parishes are also at Moray Archives in East End School, Elgin.

1696 Poll Books

In the late 17th century, one of the ways in which money was raised was by means of a Poll Tax. It was devised as a levy on every person over the age of 16 who was not a beggar. The Poll Book for Aberdeenshire gave rise to a list of 30,000 names – almost a census for Aberdeenshire at this time, and of immense value to family historians. It is the only complete one in existence for a Scottish county apart from Renfrewshire, and was transcribed and published in two volumes in 1844. Unfortunately, it was not completely indexed. The 19th-century index, made by Dingwall Fordyce, was only of “important” people.

The Society has published the whole set in 43 booklets. The volumes are indexed by people and place so that, for the first time, researchers will be able to look for their ancestors quickly and easily. Each volume also contains a map with as many places named in the Poll Book as can be found. The parish is divided into villages or farms, with a list of their inhabitants and the tax due in each case. Occupations are normally given and, in many cases, the wife’s maiden surname and sometimes even the names of their children.

Bruce Henderson Award
The Society has an annual award, named after Bruce Henderson (no. 30), who was Chairman 1981–83. It is in the form of an inscribed salver, and is given to a member who has submitted an outstanding work with North-East content. This can be a family history, or a record of a parish, community, church, farm and so on. It should be typed, single-sided, as a finished article with illustrations and photographs. The winning work will also be published by the Society.

The 2012 winner was Alison I McCall, for her work on Aberdeen School Board Female Teachers 1872-1901.

The 2013 winner was Michael G Brown for his work on The Middletons Of Birse.

100 Club
Members who have a UK bank account can have a “flutter” and help to support the Society at the same time. There is a monthly draw, with four prizes (50% of the income) being paid out. The fee for a number is £12 per annum, payable by banker’s order. Ask for a membership form.
Relationship Chart

Use this chart to determine the relationship between you and another relative.

- Determine the common ancestor you and the other person share.
- Starting with your common ancestor in the upper left corner, find yourself across the top and note the column.
- Again starting with your common ancestor in the upper left corner, find the other person down the left side and note the row.
- Go to the box where your column and their row coincide.

This is the relationship you share with the other person.
