Renewed Opportunity on the Reservation

By: Rick Garcia, Regional Administrator (Condensed from the HUDDle)

In a world too often shrouded from most of America, there’s a renewed perspective and promise of opportunity growing among its people. Thunder Valley Regenerative Community initiative has inspired the Oglala Lakota Sioux tribe who inhabit the Pine Ridge Reservation ancestral lands in southwest South Dakota to act and plan for important things to come. The renewal was evident on a recent visit with the Thunder Valley Community Development Corporation’s dynamic young Executive Director, Nick Tilsen. On this perfect warm autumn day I had an up close glimpse into what the Oyate Omnicieye [Circle of Meetings of the People] has created with its 2010 Regional Sustainable Planning grant award from HUD.

Thunder Valley has embarked on building four sustainable housing prototypes with architecture and design help from students of the University of Colorado at Boulder, Oglala Lakota College and the South Dakota School of Mines and Technology. These four houses will have the same footprint, but use different construction technologies [Straw Bale Infill; Compressed Earth Block; Structural Insulated Panels and Conventionally Framed] to compare cost and energy savings.

HUD and its federal agency partners have awarded over $200 million in sustainability grants nationally since 2010. Thunder Valley had the foresight to go after the grant funding as a constructive means to address the long standing housing shortage, high unemployment and youth apathy occurring on the reservation. The grant brought together Elders, Tribal leaders and Lakota youth to meet, talk and reach consensus on what life should look like on Pine Ridge in the future. Through numerous community meetings and outreach, all over the vast reservation, came the birth of the Regenerative Project.

Pine Ridge and the Lakota people have embarked on and experienced long term hope for a better future. Regional sustainable planning takes many forms, as demonstrated on Pine Ridge; however, it can motivate local communities and diverse interests to come together to seek agreement on how best to improve and meet the future well prepared to act. This may be one of the best outcomes yet of HUD’s regional sustainable planning grant program.
Housing Counseling Program Changes

The Housing Counseling Program is changing as a result of the new Office of Housing Counseling which was mandated by the Dodd-Frank Act of 2010. The new office is reorganizing and reinvigorating the Housing Counseling Program by specifying the functions of the program and increasing its visibility to the public.

The changes include: creating a national advisory board; increasing the visibility of housing counseling; expanding the opportunity to offer HUD-approved counseling in other housing programs and policies; providing a national network of HUD-approved counseling agencies to share model programs and best practices; and researching the effectiveness and impact of HUD’s Housing Counseling Program for households, neighborhoods, and the economy.

The Housing Counseling Program was established by the authorization of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. The purpose of Housing Counseling is providing counseling and advice to tenants and homeowners, assisting them in improving their housing conditions, meeting their financial needs, and fulfilling the responsibilities of tenancy or homeownership.

In 2011, 2,600 HUD-approved housing counseling agencies across the country provided information for more than 1.9 million households and 13.4 million households since 2005.

Condominium Project Approval Process

Mortgagee Letter (ML) 2012-18 puts in place temporary condominium project approval guidance changes to some of the current FHA condominium approval policy provisions. These changes replace certain approval requirements specifically identified in ML 2012-18 that were established in ML 11-22. For more information on the condominium approval process, consult the Condominium Project Approval and Processing Guide.

Governor’s House Program Expands

The South Dakota Housing Development Authority (SDHDA) has sold over 1,985 Governor’s Houses since the program began in 1996. SDHDA recently approved changes to the program and now allows private builders to purchase the homes for qualified participants. This partnership makes it easier for purchasers who in the past had to coordinate the purchase of the lot, foundation work and utility hookups.

School districts in rural communities of 2,500 or less may now purchase Governor’s Houses as a recruitment tool. Also, developers are allowed to purchase homes for rental purposes when financed under programs that require long term affordable rent limits targeting low-income families.

The price is $35,500 and is for households with two or less individuals whose annual income is $42,280 or less, and for households with three or more individuals whose annual income is $48,320 or less.

HUD Issues Updated Lead Guide

HUD’s Office of Healthy Homes and Lead Hazard Control published new Guidelines on how to identify and control lead-based paint and related hazards in housing, and to help property owners, government agencies, and private contractors sharply reduce exposure to lead without unnecessarily increasing the cost of renovation.

This 2nd edition replaces the edition issued by HUD in 1995. The Residential Lead-Based Paint Hazard Reduction Act of 1992 was passed by Congress 20 years ago to protect young children and families from exposure to lead in paint, dust, and soil.

HUD and the Environmental Protection Agency require people selling or renting homes built before 1978 to notify the buyers or renters about lead-based paint and its hazards before the sale or lease occurs. The EPA requires renovation, repair, or painting contractors to notify families living in these older homes of the hazards associated with the work before such work begins. HUD requires homes that receive federal housing assistance be evaluated and cleaned up for lead-based paint under its Lead Safe Housing Rule.

Grants for the Elderly and Disabled

HUD recently announced $203,254 in grants to the Tower of David Apartments in Sioux Falls. The grants will help 80 senior citizens and persons with disabilities to receive health care, meals and other critical support services.

The grants are awarded through HUD’s Multifamily Housing Service Coordinator Program (MHSC). The grants are awarded to eligible owners of private housing developments that receive rental subsidies from HUD.

HUD Homestore Mobile Search

Yardi Systems, Inc. has made available a new free application for searching foreclosed homes listed for sale. This new application makes it easy to search for houses around the nation on HUDHomestore.com, the clearing house for HUD owned foreclosures from an iPhone or iPad.

Each listing can be searched by street, city, state or ZIP code and includes pictures, maps, and the listing agent, asset manager and field service manager. For more information on how to obtain the application, click here.
Continuum of Care Funding

HUD recently announced about $1.61 billion in funding available for the Continuum of Care (CoC) Program. The CoC Program is designed to promote a community-wide commitment to the goal of ending homelessness. All organizations who deal with homeless individuals are encouraged to become part of the South Dakota Homeless Consortium.

Formed in 2000, the South Dakota Homeless Consortium is a state-wide organization consisting of service providers, individuals, city, county, and state governments, and faith-based organizations all working together to address homelessness in South Dakota.

To become involved with the South Dakota Homeless Consortium, contact Lisa Bondy at (605) 773-3445 or lisab@sdhda.org.

The deadline for the Continuum of Care Program funding application is January 18, 2013.
