The graduates listed in this book have all volunteered to speak with students who are thinking about attending St. George’s University School of Medicine. All were once in the position of attempting to judge the quality of medical education outside of the United States in the face of a dearth of information on non-US medical schools.

These physicians attended St. George’s University, graduated, or transferred to a US medical school, and are now practicing physicians. They know the uncertainties you are facing now, and can speak with you about the St. George’s University educational experience, including the clinical program in the United States and United Kingdom, the faculty, life in Grenada, examinations, and the process of becoming licensed in a given state or country.

If you wish to speak with one of the graduates highlighted in this book, visit sgu.edu/avd or contact Betsy Mills at bmills@sgu.edu, +1 (631) 665-8500, or 1 (800) 899-6337. We have graduates who may have volunteered since this directory was published, so be sure to search our complete listing at sgu.edu/avd.

Also visit sgu.edu/residencies for a listing of the postgraduate residency positions obtained by our graduates. In 2011 and 2012, St. George’s University placed more doctors into first-year US residency positions than any medical school in the world, according to published information. Our graduates have practiced in all 50 states and in 50 countries worldwide.
