Business in Egypt

Your step-by-step guide to doing business in Egypt
Egypt enjoys working with the world

We are committed to encouraging the world’s ICT companies to come and do business in our country. To this end, we are making it as attractive, quick, and easy as possible to set up and run a company here.

In the following pages we provide a step-by-step guide to what to consider when contemplating setting up in Egypt, how to set up a business, and where to go for ongoing support.

We hope you find this guide useful and look forward to welcoming your business to Egypt.
Encouraging the world’s companies
Whether you are thinking about setting up in Egypt or have already decided to invest and want to get on and do it, there is one place to go for help and advice: ITIDA, the Egyptian IT Industry Development Agency. A successful partnership between the Egyptian Ministry of Communications and Information Technology (MCIT) and the private sector, ITIDA is responsible for developing IT in Egypt. A big part of this responsibility is to attract and facilitate direct foreign investments.

From first thoughts through to setting up and developing your business, from help with incorporation to advice on incentives, work permits, customs clearance, and technical approvals – ITIDA is on hand to provide guidance and support.

It’s about helping you make the most of the opportunities every step of the way.

In good company
Egypt receives more foreign direct investment than any other country in North Africa. IBM, Oracle, Microsoft, Teleperformance, Vodafone, and Wipro are just some of the leading multinationals that have made substantial investments in Egypt.

In Egypt you can set up a company in 72 hours with as little as US$200 in capital.

Founding principle of the General Authority for Investment and Free Zones (GAFI)
“Egypt is vital to our Middle East and Africa business, and with a strong base in this dynamic marketplace, we see great e-business potential.”

Stanley Krasnow, Chairman for sales operation, IBM software group
“Reducing income and corporate taxes and custom duties of course is very positive. A more favorable tax system helps us invest further. We consider Egypt as being even more attractive now.”

Vincenzo Nesci, Chairman, Alcatel-Lucent Egypt and President Regional Unit Middle East
Egypt is home to a very welcoming business environment offering both protection and incentives for companies setting up in Egypt.

Modern, liberalized, business-friendly
Under the new legal framework, the Egyptian government allows:

- 100% foreign ownership of companies
- 100% foreign representation on the board of directors
- Full rights of profit and dividend repatriation in any currency
- Protection against expropriation
- Protection against double taxation through international treaties
- Protection against compulsory pricing
- Transfer pricing assessment on the “arm’s length” principle, based on worldwide practices such as competitive free price, the total costs plus profit margin, and the resale price methods.

Exemptions, benefits and other incentives
Under the traditional tax regime, income is taxed at 20% of profits, import duties at 2–32%, and sales tax at 5–10% for services. Payroll taxes range from 10–20%.

Export-oriented companies registered under Law 8 of 2007 can gain certain exemptions and benefits in custom duties and sales tax.

A leading reformer
In the IFC–World Bank Doing Business 2010 report, Egypt rose sharply from 116th to 106th in the ranking on the ease of doing business, driven by regulatory reforms that have made it easier to start and operate a business in the country. The highest personal tax rate, for example, has been cut from 32% to 20%; corporate tax has been more than halved, from 42% to 20%; and tariffs have been simplified and reduced from an average of 14.6% to 6.2%.
Intellectual property rights
Egypt is committed to protecting intellectual property rights (IPR). Following the introduction of a new Intellectual Property Law in 2002, the Intellectual Property Rights Office was established to reinforce these changes and administer a national copyright system. In addition, the Office works with national and international organizations to increase awareness and understanding of IPR.

Software piracy in Egypt continues to decrease. In the 2009 Business Software Alliance (BSA) and IDC Global PC Software Piracy Study, Egypt’s piracy rating remained at 59% for the second year, despite overall global levels rising in 2009. Since 2003, Egypt’s software piracy rates have fallen year after year, by 10% in all.

e-Signature
Egypt recognizes the importance of being able to do business online securely and confidently. To this end, the e-Signature Law was introduced in 2004 together with the regulatory authority, in ITIDA, responsible for overseeing and facilitating the use of e-signatures. This provides the basis for the security of all IT applications, e-commerce, and e-business in Egypt.

Anti-corruption
Egypt’s initiatives to reduce corruption range from the Anti-Money Laundering Law of 2002, through the long-running government "Say no to corruption" campaign, multiple anti-corruption agencies, and various monitoring and prosecution authorities.

Together with 140 other countries, Egypt has signed the UN Anti-Corruption Convention.

According to Transparency International’s annual Corruption Perception Index, Egypt was ranked 111th out of 180 countries in 2009. In 2010, Egypt was ranked 98th.
“Egypt continues to make significant progress against software piracy, helping to build the country's position as a leading outsourcing destination and improve the wider economy.”

Dr. Tarek Kamel
Minister of Communications and Information Technology
Quick and easy
Setting up a company in Egypt takes a few simple steps and just a few days.

Following reforms to streamline registration and incorporation, setting up a company now takes just a few days rather than two to three months. With ITIDA at your side to help, you register and incorporate through a central agency: the General Authority for Investment and Free Zones (GAFI).

There are two main steps: pre-registration and registration.

Pre-registration
During this stage, you need to do five things:

• First, decide the legal structure of the company – see options on page 8
• Second, ensure that the company to be set up complies with the ICT company laws
• Third, notify GAFI that you intend to set up a business in Egypt and obtain a comprehensive incorporation package from them
• Fourth, obtain a certificate for approval of the company's name from the Commercial Registry
• And fifth, make the guarantee deposit in a bank and issue the power of attorney.

This stage should only take a few days.

Registration
During this stage, you need to:

• Verify documents
• Pay fees (see below)
• Gain approval from the state notary
• Complete commercial registry
• Become a Chamber of Commerce member
• Assume legal responsibility and juridical personality on the date of registration
• Obtain tax cards and social security for employees after registration.

This stage takes seven to nine working days.

Relations between employers and employees in Egypt are regulated by the Labor Law 12/2003. This law is designed to increase the involvement of the private sector in the economy while balancing the rights of employees and employers.

Here are the key points:

Contracts
Contracts must be written in triplicate and in Arabic.

Hiring
Employees can either be hired for a definite period or for an indefinite period.

If the contract is for a definite period, it can be terminated for two reasons – either normal termination or gross default. The employer has to go to court to prove gross default. Contracts for a definite period can be extended by written agreement, otherwise they are converted into contracts for an indefinite period.

If the contract is for an indefinite period, it can be terminated either for gross default or for justified business downsizing. If it is for business downsizing, the case needs to be submitted and approved by the Ministry of Manpower.

Probation
A three-month probation period in the first year of employment gives both employer and employee the option to end the contract with no notice required.

Employee profiles
Employers must maintain a full profile for each employee.

Penalties /offenses
Employers must display the list of penalties/offenses that can lead to termination of an employee contract.
Social insurance
The employer contributes 14% of a basic salary and the employee contributes 26%, up to a maximum salary amount of 775 EGP per month.

The employer contributes 24% of a variable salary and the employee contributes 11%, up to a maximum salary amount of 7,500 EGP per year.

Minimum wage
The minimum wage is 108 EGP per month, according to the Social Insurance Law.

Overtime pay
Overtime pay is 35% of the monthly gross during normal daytime shifts and 70% for nighttime shifts. On Fridays and holidays, it is 100% plus one day off as compensation.

Training bonds
The employer can ask the employee to sign a training bond, which is enforceable in a court of law.

The women regulation list
Under the women regulation list:

• Women are not allowed to work from 7pm to 7am (applies to industrial organizations and construction projects; does not apply to supervisory jobs)
• Women are not allowed to do certain types of jobs such as mining
• Women have equal rights in typical work situations
• Employers must pay for transportation to and from work for women working nightshifts.

Maternity leave
A woman who has worked ten months for an employer is entitled to 90 days of maternity leave with full salary. She is entitled to this maternity leave no more than twice while she is working for the employer. She has the right to one hour’s daily rest for breast-feeding during the 24 months following the birth of her child. She cannot be dismissed while on maternity leave. In an organization of more than 50 employees, she is entitled to unpaid leave of up to two years.

Days off
Employees are entitled to one day off each week.

Annual leave
Employees are entitled to a minimum annual paid leave of 21 days every one full year of service.

Public holidays
There are ten official public holidays, which are fully paid.

Sick leave
Employees are entitled to up to 30 days of paid sick leave each three years. They are then entitled to 75% of their salary for the next eight months.

Casual leave
Casual leave should not exceed six days a year, with a maximum of two days each time.
