As a Monash student you will join an institution that has an international reputation for innovation and is consistently ranked in the top 100 universities worldwide. You’ll gain the skills, knowledge and networks to confidently chart a successful career while studying in a vibrant, inclusive and open community.

What types of courses does Monash offer?

Monash has one of the most extensive range of courses in Australia. So take your pick – whatever your career ambitions, personal interests and life situation, there’s a course of study to match it.

Flexibility and choice

A comprehensive course at Monash is all about developing expertise. These courses offer a variety of options across a broad range of study areas including arts, business, commerce, information technology and science. Comprehensive courses offer maximum flexibility and choice.

You can choose comprehensive courses already knowing what your major area of study will be. But if you are still deciding these courses offer the opportunity to try a range of subjects in your first year, before choosing your major area of study for the remaining years.

Structured for early specialisation

Specialist courses enable you to concentrate in a particular area of study from day one, giving you the focus and depth required for entry into many careers. While some specialist courses are designed to prepare you for specific professions, others concentrate on developing particular expertise that is applicable to a broader range of related careers.

Double degree courses

A double degree course means you study two courses at the same time, allowing you to gain skills and knowledge in two fields of interest. Double degrees take two years less to complete than taking the courses one after the other because electives from each course count towards the other.

Full-time/part-time

Monash offers both full-time and part-time study options in most courses. You can enrol in just one unit or up to the maximum for your course (usually four units per semester). You can make this decision each semester. So you might be part-time one semester and then decide to increase your units the next.

On-campus/off-campus

Some Monash courses are offered off-campus. Off-campus simply means you do not need to attend classes. It is a flexible mode of study, based on a combination of printed study materials and electronic communication. Each unit studied in the off-campus learning mode has the same content and assessment as the equivalent on-campus unit.

If you have work or other commitments, off-campus learning enables you to further your studies at your own pace.
