Introduction

Nationwide, over 100 cities and counties have adopted what is widely known as “ban the box” so that employers consider a job candidate’s qualifications first, without the stigma of a criminal record. These initiatives provide applicants a fair chance by removing the conviction history question on the job application and delaying the background check inquiry until later in the hiring.

Federally, the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) endorsed removing the conviction question from the job application as a best practice in its 2012 guidance making clear that federal civil rights laws regulate employment decisions based on arrests and convictions. The Obama Administration’s My Brother’s Keeper Task Force also gave the movement a boost when it endorsed hiring practices “which give applicants a fair chance and allows employers the opportunity to judge individual job candidates on their merits.”

Fair chance policies benefit everyone because they’re good for families and the local community. At a recent event in Oakland for employers to discuss reentry issues, one business owner spoke to the personal benefit he finds from hiring people with records. “I’ve seen how a job makes all the difference,” says Derreck B. Johnson, founder and president of Home of Chicken and Waffles in Oakland. “When I give someone a chance and he becomes my best employee, I know that I’m doing right by my community.”

This resource guide documents the states, the District of Columbia, and the over 100 cities and counties that have taken steps to remove barriers to employment for qualified workers with records. Seven states, the District of Columbia, and 27 cities and counties now extend the fair-chance policy to government contractors or private employers. Of the localities, Baltimore, Buffalo, Chicago, Columbia (MO), the District of Columbia, Montgomery County (MD), New York City, Newark, Philadelphia, Portland (OR), Prince George’s County (MD), Rochester, San Francisco, and Seattle extend their fair-chance laws to private employers in the area. A chart summarizing all the policies is at the end of this guide.
To support your state and local efforts to enact a fair-chance policy, check out NELP’s Fair Chance – Ban the Box Toolkit, which provides a step-by-step guide for advocates on how to launch a “ban the box” campaign. Embedded in the Toolkit is a range of resources to draft a law, to build your network, to support your outreach, and even to develop your media outreach. Here, are just a few of the resources:

- A one-page Factsheet, explains the basics of the policy.
- The Research Summary is a compilation of supportive research.

1. CALIFORNIA ASSEMBLY BILL 218 (2013) (APPLIES TO PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT) Signed on October 10, 2013 by Governor Edmond “Jerry” Brown (D), AB 218 removes questions about convictions from state agency, city, county and special district job applications and postpones such inquiries until later in the hiring process. The bill was initially introduced in 2012 as AB 1831 applying only to cities and counties. After the first effort stalled in the senate, AB 218 was introduced in 2013. Sponsoring organizations included the National Employment Law Project, Legal Services for Prisoners with Children, All of Us or None, and PICO California. More than 100 organizations, spanning labor, interfaith, reentry, civil rights, employment, criminal justice, and others groups, formed a coalition that strongly supported the bill. AB 218 was also endorsed by several major newspapers, including The New York Times, Los Angeles Times, and Sacramento Bee. Introduced by Asm. Roger Dickinson (D), see bill information. See NELP’s press release.

Commentary: Before AB 218 and under the administration of Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger (R), an administrative policy removing the conviction question from state job applications was adopted in 2010. On the effective date of the legislation, NELP released a survey of the largest cities and counties in California, which revealed statewide implementation of the law.

2. COLORADO HOUSE BILL 1263 (2012) (APPLIES TO STATE EMPLOYMENT AND LICENSING) Signed on May 29, 2012 by Governor John Hickenlooper (D), HB 1263 prohibits state agencies and licensing agencies from performing a background check until the agency determines that the applicant is a finalist for the position or the applicant receives a conditional offer. In determining whether a conviction disqualifies an applicant from employment or licensing, the state or licensing agency must consider (1) the nature of the conviction; (2) the direct relationship of the conviction to the job; (3) rehabilitation and good conduct; and (4) the time elapsed since the conviction. The law further prevents agencies from using arrests not leading to conviction in deciding whether to deny or withdraw an offer. Agencies may not disqualify an applicant based on an expunged, sealed, or pardoned conviction or charges dismissed pursuant to a deferred judgment, unless the agencies first consider the four factors listed above.

This law does not apply where a statute bars licensing based on convictions nor to certain public safety or correction-related jobs. The law addresses blanket bans in job advertisements that include a statement that a person with a criminal record may not apply. The legislation was supported by the Colorado Criminal Justice Reform Coalition. Introduced by Rep. Claire Levy (D), see bill information.

Commentary: Prior to the bill, Colorado state employment applications omitted any inquiries about applicants’ convictions or arrests. Thus, unlike the typical fair hiring legislation, this bill does not include language that requires removing the question about convictions on the application.
3. CONNECTICUT HOUSE BILL 5207 (2010) (APPLIES TO STATE EMPLOYMENT)

Connecticut’s HB 5207 unanimously passed both the House and Senate, but was vetoed by the Governor. Nonetheless, legislators overrode the veto. Taking effect on October 1, 2010, state employers must wait until an applicant has been deemed otherwise qualified for the position before obtaining a criminal background report. HB 5207 amended existing law (§ 46a-80), which already included the following provisions directed to state agencies and licensing. First, the existing law prohibited applicants from being disqualified solely because of a conviction. Second, it required consideration of (1) the nature of the crime and its relationship to the job or occupation; (2) rehabilitation; and (3) the time elapsed since the conviction or release before making an employment or licensure determination. Third, an applicant must be provided with a written letter of rejection specifically stating the evidence presented and reasons for rejection. Finally, existing law also prohibited the use or dissemination of records of arrests that did not lead to conviction, or records of convictions that had been erased. Introduced by Labor and Public Employees Committee, see bill information.

Commentary: Laying the foundation for the bill’s sweeping support in the legislature, advocates formed a coalition (including A Better Way Foundation) that won fair-chance policies locally in Norwich, Hartford, and New Haven in 2009.

4. DELAWARE HOUSE BILL 167 (2014) (APPLIES TO PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT)

Signed on May 8, 2014, HB 167 applies to the state, its agencies, and political subdivisions, such as cities and counties. This bill prohibits the public employer from inquiring into or considering criminal or credit histories of an applicant until after the completion of the first interview. When reviewing a criminal history, the public employer must consider: (1) nature of offense; (2) time passed; and (3) nature of job. Police forces and other positions with a statutory mandate for background checks are exempted. Governor Jack A. Markell endorsed the bill in his State of the State address. Introduced by Rep. James (“J.J.”) Johnson (D), see bill information. See NELP’s press release.

Commentary: In the initial bill version, the public employer was directed to consider a criminal record using a combination of factors in the EEOC Guidance and the 1979 Uniform Law Commissioners’ Model Sentencing and Corrections Act. These factors clarified the job-relatedness analysis. However, the bill was amended and the EEOC factors above replaced the language. In addition, the provision encouraging state vendors to adopt similar policies was removed.

5. GEORGIA EXECUTIVE ORDER (2015) (APPLIES TO STATE EMPLOYMENT)

Governor Nathan Deal (R) signed an executive order on February 23, 2015 which removed questions regarding criminal history from all applications for state employment. Under the executive order, inquiries into an applicant’s criminal record are postponed until after “the initial stage of the state employment application process.” In addition, the order prohibits the use of an applicant’s criminal record as an automatic bar to employment, and provides applicants an opportunity to dispute the accuracy and relevance of any disqualifying conviction relied upon for rejection. Certain “sensitive governmental positions” are exempt. See NELP’s press release.

Commentary: Georgia is the first state in the Deep South to adopt a fair hiring policy. A broad coalition of advocacy groups, including Atlantans Building Leadership for Empowerment, the Georgia Justice Project, 9to5 Atlanta, and various faith-based organizations, supported the executive order.

6. HAWAII HOUSE BILL 3528 (1998) (APPLIES TO PUBLIC AND PRIVATE EMPLOYMENT)

In 1998, Hawaii became the first state to adopt a fair-chance law as applied to both public and private employment. The statute, Haw. Rev. Stat. § 378-2.5, prohibits employers from inquiring into an applicant’s conviction history until after a conditional offer of employment has been made. The offer may be withdrawn if the applicant’s conviction bears a “rational relationship” to the duties and responsibilities of the position sought. Under the law, employers may only consider an employee’s conviction record within the most recent ten years, excluding periods of incarceration. Prior to HB 3528, the definition of unlawful discriminatory practices (§ 378-2) included “arrest and court record” as an impermissible reason for an employer to “refuse to hire or employ or to bar or discharge from employment, or otherwise to discriminate against any individual.”

Commentary: NELP recommends prohibiting employers from inquiring into a conviction until after a conditional offer as one of the strongest means to change employer behavior of categorically rejecting the job applications of people with records.

7. ILLINOIS HOUSE BILL 5701 (2014) (APPLIES TO PRIVATE EMPLOYERS)

Introduced on February 14, 2014, HB 5701, the “Job Opportunities for Qualified Applicants Act,” applies to employers with 15 or more employees and employment agencies. Employers may not inquire into an applicant’s criminal record until the applicant has been selected for an interview by the employer or until after a conditional offer of employment is made to the applicant. Positions that have state or federal law exclusions based on certain convictions are exempted. The bill authorizes the imposition of warnings and civil penalties against violators. The bill was signed by Governor Pat Quinn on July 19, 2014. Introduced by Rep. Rita Mayfield (D), see bill information. See NELP’s press release.

Commentary: The bill applies to only private employers, because Governor Pat Quinn issued an executive order in 2013, Order 1, which required the Illinois Bureau of Personnel in the Department of Central Management Services (CMS) to modify the Application for State Employment (the “CMS100”) for all state employing agencies, boards, and commissions.

8. MARYLAND SENATE BILL 4 (2013) (APPLIES TO STATE EMPLOYMENT)

Signed on May 2, 2013 by Governor Martin O’Malley (D), SB 4 adds Article 2-203, Chapter 160 to the state code and prohibits state public employers from inquiring into the criminal history of an applicant for employment until the applicant has been provided an opportunity for an interview. Exceptions to the law include positions within the Department of Corrections, the Office of the Sheriff for any county, or where a background check is required by law. Introduced by Sen. Catherine Pugh (D), see bill information.

Commentary: Job Opportunities Task Force led efforts on the bill for three prior years, which built a strong statewide coalition. The law includes a sunset provision of June 30, 2018.

9. MASSACHUSETTS SENATE BILL 2583 (2010) (APPLIES TO PUBLIC AND PRIVATE EMPLOYMENT) Governor Deval Patrick (D) signed Chapter 256 of the Acts of 2010 on August 6, 2010. Under Senate Bill 2583, employers can no longer use an initial written employment application to ask whether an applicant has been convicted unless there is a legal restriction that applies to the specific job or occupation. The law requires that applicants receive a copy of their criminal history report (1) prior to being questioned about their history; and (2) if an adverse decision is made based on the report. As a self-auditing mechanism, individuals are able to determine if the report was run through the state system. With certain exceptions, criminal records provided by the state may only contain (1) felony convictions for 10 years following disposition; (2) misdemeanor convictions for 5 years following disposition; and (3) pending criminal charges. The legislation was supported by a broad coalition (including Massachusetts Law Reform Institute and Boston Workers Alliance (BWA)). See bill information, MCAD factsheet, and BWA factsheet.

Commentary: The bill uniquely tackles the issue of inaccurate commercial background checks by creating an incentive for employers to use the state's database, which then limits the length of time that criminal history information is available. It also ensures that a denied applicant receives a copy of his or her record, paralleling one component of the federal consumer protection law, the Fair Credit Reporting Act, which applies to commercially-prepared background checks.

10. MINNESOTA SENATE BILL 523 (2009, 2013) (APPLIES TO PUBLIC AND PRIVATE EMPLOYMENT) Signed on May 13, 2013 by Governor Mark Dayton (D), SF 523 amends Minn. Stat. § 364 et seq. This amendment expands the law from 2009 to cover not only public-sector hiring, but also adds that private employers may not inquire into an applicant's criminal history until after the applicant has been selected for an interview or before a conditional offer of employment. It also establishes penalties for private employers including fines for failure to comply. Behind the legislative win, the Minnesota Second Chance Coalition built on the 2009 success of HF 1301, which added section 364.021 to Minn. Stat. § 364 et seq, applying ban-the-box to public employment. Longstanding statutory protections preceding that bill, dating back to 1974, include a prohibition against disqualifying applicants from public employment or licensure unless the conviction is "directly related" to the position of employment or occupational license sought, a requirement that job-related factors be considered, and a ban on using records of arrest not followed by valid conviction, annulled or expunged convictions, and misdemeanor convictions for which no jail sentence can be imposed when evaluating applicants for public employment or licensure. Introduced by Sen. Bobby Joe Champion (DFL), see bill information.

Commentary: HF 1301 was signed by then-Governor Tim Pawlenty (R). Like HF 1301, SF 523 was an example of bipartisanship. Spurred by the state legislation, the Minneapolis-based retailer Target announced it would ban-the-box nationally. To support implementation, the Minnesota Department of Human Rights has provided educational materials for employers.

11. NEBRASKA LEGISLATIVE BILL 907 (2014) (APPLIES TO PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT) Originally introduced in January 2014 as LB 932, the legislation applies to public employers—the state, counties, and cities. Public employers are prohibited from inquiring into a job applicant’s criminal history until after the employer has determined the applicant meets the minimum job requirements. Law enforcement positions and other positions with mandated background check requirements are exempted, as well as school districts regarding specific information. The language of LB 932 was added as Sec. 12 to the more comprehensive prison reform legislation intended to reduce the inmate population, LB 907. Governor Dave Heineman (R) signed LB 907 on April 16, 2014. LB 932 was introduced by Sen. Bill Avery (D) and LB 907 was introduced by Sen. Brad Ashford (D), see bill information. See NELP’s press release.

Commentary: Although exemptions are generally unnecessary with fair-chance legislation because a background check is delayed, not prevented, exemptions can serve to assuage fears. Supporters include the City of Omaha; in fact, Mayor Jean Stothert (R) cited her support for the legislation in her 2014 state of the city address.

12. NEW JERSEY ASSEMBLY HOUSE BILL 1999 AND SENATE BILL 1484 (2014) (APPLIES TO PUBLIC AND PRIVATE EMPLOYMENT) Initial versions were introduced in 2013, but were reintroduced in 2014 as A1999 and S1484, known as “The Opportunity to Compete Act” (OTCA). A heavily amended A1999 was passed and signed by Governor Chris Christie on August 11, 2014. The final language is available here. The bill mandates that public and private employers cannot inquire into a candidate’s criminal history until the employer has conducted the first interview with the candidate. Employers may not consider expunged or pardoned convictions when making an employment decision. Introduced to Senate by Sens. Sandra B. Cunningham (D), M. Teresa Ruiz (D), and Raymond J. Lesniak (D) and introduced to Assembly by Asms. Bonnie Watson Coleman (D), Jerry Green (D), and L. Grace Spencer (D), see bill information. See NELP’s press release. On December 7, 2015, the New Jersey Department of Labor and Workforce Development adopted implementing regulations (N.J.A.C. 12:68).
Commentary: Leading up to the introduction of the legislation, the New Jersey Institute for Social Justice engaged the private employer community through business roundtables as discussed in NELP’s webinar. The original version of the bill, available here, included numerous strong provisions, such as delaying inquiry until a conditional offer.

13. NEW MEXICO SENATE BILL 254 (2010) (APPLIES TO PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT) On March 8, 2010, Governor Bill Richardson (D) signed this measure into law adding N.M. Stat. § 28-2-3 to the existing “Criminal Offender Employment Act” (1974). The bipartisan effort resulted in public employers, including cities and counties, being prohibited from inquiring into an applicant’s conviction history on an initial employment application until an applicant has been “selected as a finalist.” The law permits convictions to be considered when determining eligibility for public employment or licensure, but convictions “may not operate as an automatic bar.” The law further prohibits, for employment and licensing, the use of records of arrest not leading to conviction and misdemeanor convictions not involving moral turpitude. Drug Policy Alliance New Mexico led the efforts on the bill. Introduced by Sen. Clinton D. Harden (R), see bill information.

Commentary: The bill amended existing law, which permits a “moral turpitude” conviction that “directly relates” to employment to be the basis for denial. The existing law requires a written statement to the applicant of the reasons for denial and provides the parameters for a presumption of rehabilitation (§ 28-2-4).

14. NEW YORK (2015) (APPLIES TO STATE EMPLOYMENT) On September 21, 2015, Governor Andrew Cuomo announced that the state would “adopt fair chance hiring” for New York State agencies. As explained in a press release about the policy change: “applicants for competitive positions with New York State agencies will not be required to discuss or disclose information about prior convictions until and unless the agency has interviewed the candidate and is interested in hiring him or her.”

Commentary: The fair-chance hiring policy was part of package of recommendations made by the state’s Council on Community Re-Entry and Reintegration, created in July 2014 by the governor.

15. OHIO ADMINISTRATIVE POLICY HR-29 AND HOUSE BILL 56 (2015) (APPLIES TO PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT) As of June 1, 2015, the Ohio Department of Administrative Services removed questions about conviction and arrest history from the initial application for state employment per HR-29. The Department also required that every hiring decision-maker weigh factors similar to those found in the EEOC guidance. On December 22, 2015, Governor John Kasich (R) signed into law HB 56, which prohibits all public employers, including cities and counties, from including any questions about criminal records on initial applications for employment. The Ohio Fair Hiring Act also prohibits a felony conviction from being used against certain classes of public employees unless the conviction occurs while that person is employed in the civil service.
Commentary: The Ohio Fair Hiring Act arose from the recommendations and advocacy of a strong coalition led by the Ohio Justice & Policy Center and the Ohio Organizing Collaborative.

16. OKLAHOMA (2016) EXECUTIVE ORDER 2016-03 (APPLIES TO STATE EMPLOYMENT)
On February 24, 2016 Governor Mary Fallin signed an executive order directing all state agencies to remove questions regarding convictions and criminal history from job applications. The executive order does not apply to “sensitive government positions” and positions where a felony conviction would automatically disqualify an applicant. It is intended to allow for an opportunity for applicants to discuss their conviction records and provide rehabilitation information.

Commentary: The Executive Order arose from recommendations by the Oklahoma Justice Reform Steering Committee, a broad-based advisory committee that Governor Fallin created by executive order in 2015. See Governor Fallin's press release.

17. OREGON HOUSE BILL 3025 (2015) (APPLIES TO PUBLIC AND PRIVATE EMPLOYMENT) Signed on June 25, 2015, HB 3025 prohibits an employer from inquiring about an applicant's prior criminal convictions until the initial interview with the applicant. There are exceptions for positions where an applicant with a conviction history would be automatically disqualified by law, and for law enforcement, criminal justice positions, and volunteers.

Commentary: A coalition of community groups and labor championed the fair hiring legislation in Oregon under the campaign Fair Shot for All, which also included minimum wage, wage theft, and racial profiling legislation as part of its agenda.

18. RHODE ISLAND HOUSE BILL 5507 (2013) (APPLIES TO PUBLIC AND PRIVATE EMPLOYMENT) Signed into law on July 15, 2013, by Governor Lincoln Chafee (D), HB 5507 prohibits an employer from inquiring about an applicant's prior criminal convictions until the first interview with the applicant. An employer may inquire about the applicant's criminal convictions during the first interview. There are exceptions for positions where an applicant with a conviction history would be automatically disqualified by law. Introduced by Reps. Scott Slater (D), Michael W. Chippendale (R), Anastasia Williams (D), Joseph S. Almeida (D), and Grace Diaz (D), see bill information.

Commentary: Direct Action for Rights and Equality championed the efforts for years, producing the powerful video Beyond the Box.

19. VERMONT EXECUTIVE ORDER 03-15 (2015) (APPLIES TO STATE EMPLOYMENT) On April 21, 2015, Governor Peter Shumlin (D) signed an executive order that eliminates all criminal records inquiries from applications for state employment. Under the policy, criminal background checks are not conducted until “an applicant has otherwise been found qualified for the position.” The executive order does not apply to law enforcement, correctional facilities, or “other sensitive positions.”
Commentary: In addition to the ban-the-box measure, Governor Shumlin expressed his support for S. 115, a bill that would allow more Vermonters to expunge convictions from their records. The bill passed the House and Senate.

20. VIRGINIA EXECUTIVE ORDER 41 (2015) (APPLIES TO STATE EMPLOYMENT) Signed on April 3, 2015 by Governor Terry McAuliffe (D), Executive Order 41 removes questions relating to criminal history from the state employment application. State employment decisions will not be based on the criminal history of an individual unless demonstrably job-related and consistent with business necessity. See NELP’s press release.

Commentary: Local advocates had been championing legislative action on “ban the box” for several years. After the latest legislation stalled, advocates called for executive action.

21. WISCONSIN (2016) ASSEMBLY BILL 373 (APPLIES TO STATE EMPLOYMENT) Governor Scott Walker signed legislation on February 12, 2016, which dramatically overhauled the state’s civil service system. A provision of the bill precludes the state from inquiring about a person’s record on the job application and delays inquiries until the applicant is certified for the position.

Commentary: Senator Lena C. Taylor commented that the law represented “terrible changes in the state civil service system.” Yet, “the new law includes a ray of hope to those with a prior record.”

BOSTON, MA (ORDINANCE APPLIES TO CITY AND VENDORS)
- Background checks only required for some positions
- Policies applies to vendors/contractors doing business with the City
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment
- Right to appeal denial of employment

In 2004, Boston implemented policies that limit discrimination against people with criminal records in city government positions. In July 2006, Boston expanded those policies by removing the questions about criminal history from the job application and by requiring an estimated 50,000 city vendors to follow the City’s hiring standards. The revised job application begins with an anti-discrimination statement listing “ex-offender status” as a protected classification. Background checks are not required for all positions. The ordinance includes an appeal and the right to present information. A broad community coalition, Massachusetts Alliance to Reform CORI (MARC), supported these developments.

SAN FRANCISCO, CA (BOARD OF SUPERVISORS RESOLUTION APPLIES TO CITY AND COUNTY (2005))
- Background check only for finalists for positions
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment

SAN FRANCISCO FAIR-CHANCE ORDINANCE APPLIES TO PRIVATE EMPLOYERS AND AFFORDABLE HOUSING (2014)
- Policy applies to private employers and to affordable housing
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment (jobs and housing)
- Right to appeal denial of employment or housing
- Provides copy of background check report

The campaign to "ban the box" on San Francisco's applications for public employment was led by All of Us or None, a national organizing initiative of formerly incarcerated people. In 2005, the San Francisco Board of Supervisors approved a resolution initiated by All of Us or None calling for San Francisco to eliminate hiring discrimination against people with criminal records by removing the request for criminal history information on the initial job application for public employment. The resolution was implemented as a municipal hiring policy. An individual’s past convictions can only be considered after an applicant has been identified as a finalist for a position. The exception is for those jobs where state or local laws expressly bar people with convictions from employment, in which case the City conducts its background review at an earlier stage of the hiring process.

In 2011, the San Francisco Human Rights Commission and the San Francisco Reentry Council recommended expanding the City’s policy to all private employers, vendors, and affordable housing providers. After a three-year campaign led by NELP, All of Us or None, and the Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights of the San Francisco Bay Area (LCCR), the San Francisco Board of Supervisors unanimously passed the Fair Chance Ordinance on February 4, 2014.

CHICAGO, IL (MAYOR’S INITIATIVE; ORDINANCE APPLIES TO PRIVATE EMPLOYERS)

- Policy applies to private employers
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment

In May 2004, Chicago Mayor Richard Daley created the Mayoral Policy Caucus on Prisoner Reentry, bringing together government and community leaders. In January 2006, the Caucus issued a major report calling for broad reforms of City policy. Implementing the Mayor’s hiring policy, the Chicago Department of Human Resources issued guidelines and removed the question about criminal history from the job application. In November 2014, the City Council passed an ordinance that extended the city policy to all private employers, including those that are exempted from the state law (which covers private employers with more than 15 employees). Conviction history inquiry is permitted after the candidate is selected for an interview or after conditional offer. The ordinance was referred to the Council by Mayor Rahm Emanuel.

Beginning in March 2007, Alameda County removed the question on the job application that required all applicants to list their criminal convictions. Self-disclosure of criminal history information does not occur until the last step of the examination process and fingerprinting for background checks is performed after a conditional offer. In addition, to protect against potential discrimination, a special unit in the Human Resources Department performs an analysis to determine if the conviction is, in fact, related to the specific functions of the job. As reported by the Interim Director of Human Resources Services in March 2012, the County has not had any problems with the policy and “has benefited from hiring dedicated and hardworking County employees because of the policy change.”

In December 2006, Mayor Christopher Coleman of St. Paul directed the City’s Human Resources Department to reform its hiring process so that “all applicants have a full and fair opportunity for employment.” The City thus amended its employment application to remove questions regarding criminal history. That same month, the City Council approved a resolution calling on the City to “make a good faith determination as to which specific positions of employment are of such sensitivity and responsibility that a background check is warranted.” The resolution... also mandated that background checks be performed only after an applicant is determined to be otherwise qualified for that position.

MINNEAPOLIS, MN (RESOLUTION APPLIES TO CITY)
- Background checks only required for some positions
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment

Like St. Paul, Minneapolis passed a resolution banning the box in December 2006. The Minneapolis resolution shares many characteristics with the St. Paul resolution, including banning the box, making a “good faith” determination of which positions require background checks, and performing background checks on applicants only after they have been determined to be otherwise qualified. The Council on Crime and Justice, with the support of more than 30 community organizations, was instrumental in getting both the St. Paul and Minneapolis resolutions passed.

OAKLAND, CA (CITY ADMINISTRATOR HIRING POLICY APPLIES TO CITY)

- Background check only after conditional offer of employment
- Background checks only required for some positions
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment
- Right to appeal denial of employment
- Provides copy of background check report

Oakland changed its job application in 2007 to eliminate questions about conviction histories. The new process did not require additional resources. Since implementing this practice, only a small number of applicants have been screened out from employment due to their criminal histories. Working with All of Us or None, the City improved its policy in 2010. The City conducts background checks on applicants after a conditional offer, but only for those positions required by law or the City has made a “good faith determination” that the position warrants it. The City also notifies the applicant of the potential adverse employment action, provides a copy of the background report, and provides the applicant an opportunity to rebut the accuracy or relevancy of the background report. Final decisions are based on job-relatedness and other EEOC factors.

MULTNOMAH COUNTY (PORTLAND, OR AREA; ADMINISTRATIVE POLICY APPLIES TO COUNTY)

- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment

In October 2007, Multnomah County removed the question about criminal history from both on-line and hard-copy applications. The Multnomah County policy is similar to the policy implemented in the City and County of San Francisco. The Portland-based group, Partnership for Safety and Justice, was instrumental in the adoption of the county hiring policy as part of their "Think Outside of the Box" campaign.

When an applicant’s criminal history is considered, at a later stage of the hiring process, the Multnomah County policy requires an individualized determination of whether the conviction bears a rational relationship to the job. According to the policy, important factors to consider include the nature of the crime for which the applicant was convicted; any positive changes demonstrated since the conviction; the age at time of arrest; and the amount of time that has elapsed since the arrest occurred.

- Background checks only required for some positions
- Policies applies to vendors/contractors doing business with the City
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment
- Right to appeal prior to adverse determination
- Provides copy of background check report

In May 2007, Cambridge implemented policies limiting discrimination against people with criminal records in city government positions. In January 2008, the City Council passed an ordinance extending the requirements of the hiring policy to city vendors. Consistent with the City's hiring policy, vendors contracting with Cambridge wait to conduct a criminal background check until the job applicant is found to be "otherwise qualified" for the position.

BALTIMORE, MD (HIRING POLICY APPLIES TO CITY, ORDINANCE APPLIES TO PUBLIC AND PRIVATE EMPLOYERS)
- Background check only after conditional offer of employment
- Background checks only required for some positions
- Ordinance applies to public and private employers

In December 2007, with the backing of Mayor Sheila Dixon, the City of Baltimore's Board of Estimates unanimously approved changes to the City's administrative hiring policy. In accordance with the policy, the City removed the criminal history question from its job application. The City also implemented a policy to determine which positions qualified as "Positions of Trust" and thus require a background check. Employment applications for positions that are not positions of trust do not require applicants to disclose prior convictions or any other criminal history information. Where applicable, the applicant’s criminal history is reviewed at the final stages in the hiring process.

In April 2014, the City Council approved an updated fair-chance ordinance that applies to all employers with 10 or more employees. The new ordinance prohibits inquiry into a job applicant’s conviction history until after a conditional offer of employment and provides administrative and judicial review of and remedial relief for violations. Uniquely, the ordinance provides for misdemeanor criminal charges and a fine to be levied against employers who violate the law.

TRAVIS COUNTY (AUSTIN, TX AREA; ADMINISTRATIVE POLICY APPLIES TO COUNTY)

- Background check only after applicant selected for hire
- Background checks only required for some positions
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment

In April 2008, acting upon the recommendation of Justice and Public Safety and the Director of Human Resources for Travis County, the Travis County Commissioner's Court voted to remove the question about an applicant’s criminal history from county job applications. The Travis County Reentry Roundtable Report, which was completed in 2007, recommended changes to the county's hiring practice as a key way to increase employment opportunities for people reentering the community. The Human Resources Department trains hiring managers to consider "circumstances such as length of time since offense, seriousness of the offense, frequency of criminal incidents, and other mitigating factors."

AUSTIN, TX (ORDINANCE APPLIES TO CITY)

- Background check only after conditional offer of employment
- Background checks only required for some positions

The City approved a ban-the-box ordinance in October 2008. The criminal background investigation questions were removed from the on-line employment application. For non-safety/law enforcement jobs, criminal background investigations are required only for positions that have financial responsibility or work with children, the disabled or elderly. When the job falls in one of these categories, the background investigation is undertaken only after an applicant has received a conditional offer. Individuals are also provided notice of denial.

BERKELEY, CA (HUMAN RESOURCE DEPARTMENT HIRING POLICY APPLIES TO CITY)

- Background check only after conditional offer of employment
- Background checks only required for some positions
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment

In October 2008, the City of Berkeley's Human Resources Department eliminated disclosure of conviction history information from the City's job application at the request of City Council. Berkeley does not require disclosure of conviction history information until an applicant is selected for the position and has received a conditional offer of employment. The Human Resources Department then reviews conviction history information, which is kept confidential. The evaluation includes “an assessment of the relationship between a conviction and the functions of the position; number of convictions; time elapsed since the conviction, evidence of rehabilitation, and any other mitigating circumstances.” The City obtains conviction history from the California Department of Justice for identified public safety, recreation, and cash-handling/asset management positions only; for all other positions, conviction history self-disclosure is required. Police Department hires are exempted.

NORWICH, CT (ORDINANCE APPLIES TO CITY)
- Background check only after conditional offer of employment

In December 2008, Norwich's City Council voted to move “Beyond the Box” and reduce barriers to employment for people with criminal records. A large group of advocates including Connecticut Pardon Team, A Better Way Foundation, Evergreen Family Oriented Tree/Clean Slate of New Haven, CABHN, Legal Assistance Resource Center and Greater Hartford Legal Aid worked together to ensure the City Council passed the ordinance, the first of its kind in Connecticut at that time, paving the way for other cities and the State to follow suit.

- Background check only after conditional offer of employment
- Policies applies to vendors/contractors doing business with the City
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment
- Right to appeal denial of employment
- Provides copy of background check report

In February 2009, the City of New Haven’s Board of Aldermen approved an ordinance that requires the City and its vendors to wait to conduct a criminal background check until the job applicant is selected for the position and has received a conditional offer of employment. The City’s Human Resources Department then evaluates the applicant’s criminal history, keeping all information confidential within the Department. The ordinance also provides applicants with a copy of their conviction history report and the opportunity to appeal adverse employment decisions based upon a past conviction within ten days of receiving notice of the decision not to hire.

SEATTLE, WA (ORDINANCE APPLIES TO CITY AND PRIVATE EMPLOYERS)
- Background checks only required for some positions
- Applies to public and private employers
- Right to appeal denial of employment
- Provides copy of background check report

In April 2009, the Personnel Director for the City of Seattle issued a memo to all department heads announcing the completion and implementation of the Citywide Personnel Rule for Criminal Background Checks. On November 13, 2013, Seattle’s Fair Chance Employment Ordinance went into effect. Adding to the state law that prohibits public agencies from refusing to hire someone or grant a license based solely on a criminal conviction, the new policy applies to both the City of Seattle and private employers.

The ordinance prohibits employers from inquiring into an applicant’s criminal history until after the employer has identified qualified applicants. Employers are permitted to conduct criminal history investigations and may exclude individuals from employment based on the applicant’s criminal history if there is a legitimate business reason for doing so. Before an employer takes a negative employment decision based on an applicant’s criminal history, the employer must identify to the applicant what information they are using to make the decision and provide the applicant with a minimum of two days in which to correct or explain that information.

PROVIDENCE, RI (ADMINISTRATIVE POLICY APPLIES TO CITY)
In 2008, the Mayor’s Policy Office began investigating the City’s hiring practices and their impact on the ability of people with criminal convictions to successfully transition back into the workforce. After consulting with NELP and HR representatives from three cities that had already successfully "banned the box," the City agreed to change the hiring policies. In April 2009, the HR department removed the language relating to information on criminal charges from its applications. In addition, the applicant only signs a waiver for a background check once it has been determined that the candidate satisfies the minimum criteria for the position based on qualifications and ability.

In May 2009, Hartford’s City Council recognized that barriers to employment for people with criminal records "creat[e] permanent members of an underclass that threatens the health of the community and undermines public safety." In response, the City Council passed an ordinance to change the hiring policy of the City and its vendors. It offers important protections to workers, including prohibiting the consideration of arrests that did not lead to conviction; delaying background checks in the hiring process; limiting background checks to specific positions; and providing applicants the opportunity to appeal adverse employment decisions.

In June 2009, Worcester’s City Council passed the Fair CORI Practices Ordinance. This ordinance applies to “all persons and businesses supplying goods and/or services to the city of Worcester.” Background checks may only be performed when mandated by law, or when the city or vendor “determines that the position in question is of such sensitivity’’ that a review of the applicant’s criminal history is warranted. The comprehensive law also requires that the person reviewing the background report be trained to do so, and that they apply a list of factors to be considered. Finally, applicants may appeal if an adverse decision is made based on the criminal history.

JACKSONVILLE, FL (ORDINANCE APPLIES TO CITY)

- Background check only after applicant selected for hire
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment
- Right to appeal denial of employment

In 2008, the City Council adopted an ordinance reforming both its hiring procedures and its contractor bidding policies. In July 2009, the City’s Human Resources Department released the revised standard. The directive states that department heads will “not inquire about or consider criminal background check information in making a hiring decision.” Instead, “criminal information disclosure is required as part of the post-offer new hire process.’’ (emphasis in original). The application instructions even encourage people with a criminal record to apply for city jobs. The criminal background check screening is centralized in the Human Resources Department. Moreover, the screening process requires taking into account the specific duties of the job, the age of the offense, and rehabilitation. Denied applicants may appeal to Human Resources. Contractors are required to tally job opportunities for people with criminal records and report back to the City.

In October 2009, Bridgeport’s City Council ratified changes to the City’s civil service rules regarding criminal history investigations of applicants. Under the rules, the Personnel Director will seek information about applicants’ criminal histories only after the applicant has been found “otherwise eligible” to take the civil service examination. The initial employment application includes a disclaimer that criminal history information will be sought later in the application or examination process. Candidates who are disqualified because of their criminal record have the right to appeal the Personnel Director’s decision to the Civil Service Commission. The ordinance bans the box and, “except as otherwise dictated by state and federal law,” permits inquiry into an applicant’s criminal history only after the applicant has been determined to be otherwise qualified. - Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment
- Background check only after conditional offer of employment
- Right to appeal denial of employment
- Provides copy of background check report

In August 2010, the City Council passed a motion in support of fair hiring. The City’s employment applications no longer request information on an applicant’s criminal history and background checks are conducted only after a contingent offer of employment has been made. If a criminal background check is the basis for denying employment, the applicant receives a copy and is given at least 10 business days to dispute the information. When considering an applicant’s criminal history in making an employment decision, the Human Resources Department must consider whether the past offense(s) directly relate to the job responsibilities, the age of the person at the time of the offense(s), and any evidence of rehabilitation.

In September 2010, Detroit’s City Council voted unanimously to ban the box on City applications. The amendments to the Detroit City Code prohibit inquiries or consideration concerning criminal convictions for City employees until an applicant is interviewed or is found to be otherwise qualified for employment by the City. The ordinance further revises the City’s job application to include a statement that “criminal convictions are not a bar to City employment, provided, that the prior criminal activity is not directly related to the position being sought.” As of July 1, 2012, the City has required business vendors and contractors to remove the conviction history question from job applications.

On March 31, 2011, Philadelphia became the first city to ban the box for both public and private positions. On December 15, 2015, Philadelphia Mayor Michael Nutter signed an amended version of the ordinance into law that prohibits all employers from inquiring into applicants’ conviction histories any time before conditional offers are made. The amendment also restricts inquiries to the last seven years of applicants’ records; requires employers to determine whether a connection exists between an applicant’s convicted offense and the particular position before disqualifying the applicant; requires employers to notify applicants in writing of rejections and to provide the applicant a copy of the criminal history report; and allows applicants 10 business days following a rejection to provide the employer an explanation or evidence of an inaccuracy in the criminal history report.

District of Columbia (Washington D.C.) (Ordinance Applies to District and Private Employers)

- Background check only after conditional offer of employment
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment
- Policies apply to public and private employers in the District

In December 2010, the nation's capital joined the fair-chance movement by passing the Returning Citizens Public Employment Inclusion Act of 2010, which went into effect in 2011 for public employers. On July 14, 2014, the Council of the District of Columbia voted unanimously to pass the Fair Criminal Records Screening Act of 2014, which applies to private employers. Under the new law, an employer that employs 11 or more employees in the District cannot make any inquiry into an applicant’s conviction until after making a conditional offer of employment. A conditional offer can only be withdrawn for a “legitimate business reason,” which must consider job-relatedness of the offense, time passed, rehabilitation and other factors. A complaint process may be initiated with the Office of Human Rights and violation of the act may result in fines, of which half shall be awarded to the complainant. Reporting requirements are also included in the law such as voluntarily provided data on the hiring of applicants with records.

COMPTON, CA (RESOLUTION AND HIRING POLICY APPLIES TO CITY AND CONTRACTORS)
- Background check only after conditional offer
- Policies applies to contractors doing business with the City
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment

On April 5, 2011, the City of Compton passed a resolution to provide equal employment opportunities for people with criminal records, effective July 1, 2011. A criminal background check is delayed until after a conditional offer of employment is made. The city prohibits the consideration of any convictions that are not job-related in the course of an employment decision. Factors to consider include: (1) whether the position provides the opportunity for the commission of a similar offense; (2) whether the individual has committed other offenses since the conviction; (3) the nature and gravity of the offense and; (4) time since the offense. In order to promote model hiring policies, the City requires employers that receive local government contracts to adopt the same hiring policies.

NEW YORK CITY, NY (APPLIES TO CITY, PRIVATE EMPLOYERS, AND LICENSING)
- Background check only after conditional offer.
- Policy applies to public and private employers in New York City that have more than four employees
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment

On June 10, 2015, the New York City Council passed the Fair Chance Act, prohibiting employers in New York City from asking about a job applicant’s conviction record until the end of the hiring process. Under current state law, a candidate may only be denied if the conviction history is directly related to the job or poses an unreasonable risk based on certain factors, such as the time passed since the offense and its severity. Prior to a denial, an applicant is provided the employer’s analysis and a copy of any background report. The job is then held open for three days for the employee to respond and the employer to weigh the candidate’s evidence of rehabilitation. The Act includes a private right of action with attorneys’ fees for violations. Prior to the Fair Chance Act’s passage, applications for public employment in New York City did not include inquiries about criminal history under an August 2011 executive order from then-Mayor Michael Bloomberg.

- Background check only after conditional offer of employment
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment

In March 2012, the County modified its application for county jobs in order to remove criminal record inquiries from the job application. After a conditional job offer has been made, the county then evaluates criminal history based on the requirements of the job and the nature of the offense. This assessment does not apply to positions where there are statutory prohibitions on hiring people with certain kinds of convictions. - Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment

The County does not have a formal policy, but has removed the question about criminal history from its application for employment with the County, and follows the EEOC guidance regarding the consideration of criminal records. With the exception of law enforcement positions, the County generally conducts background checks on the final candidate only and often after a conditional offer of employment has been made. If a conviction disqualifies the applicant, the County provides a pre-adverse action notice and explains how the applicant can obtain the record used in the decision. The applicant normally has time to review the record and correct inaccuracies before a final decision is made.
SANTA CLARA COUNTY (SAN JOSE, CA AREA; APPLIES TO COUNTY)

Effective October 1, 2012, the County does not inquire into an applicant’s criminal history on an initial employment application form, unless explicitly mandated by law. The threshold for inquiry is after an applicant’s credentials have been reviewed, it has been determined that the applicant is otherwise qualified for a position, and the applicant has been recommended for hire by the department where the vacancy exists. Records of criminal arrests, dismissals, or convictions which have been expunged may not be used. The policy explicitly incorporates language from the 2012 updated EEOC guidance—for example, applicants are provided the opportunity for an individualized assessment.

- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment

Recognizing the role of employment in reducing recidivism, Kansas City joined the movement to ban the box on April 4, 2013. Interestingly, the ordinance prohibits the City from using or accessing the following criminal records information: records of arrests not followed by valid conviction; convictions which have been annulled or expunged; pleas of guilty without conviction; and misdemeanor convictions for which no jail sentence can be imposed. Further, suspended imposition of sentence is not considered a conviction for purposes of the ordinance. - Policies applies to vendors/contractors doing business with the City
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment
On March 13, 2014, the Louisville Metro Council unanimously passed a fair-chance ordinance. The bipartisan victory was praised by Mayor Fischer as “compassionate legislation.” The ordinance prohibits City agencies from inquiring into an applicant’s conviction history until after the applicant has been found “otherwise qualified.” The ordinance states that the City prefers to do business with vendors who have adopted policies that are consistent with the City, and that consideration of vendors’ criminal history policies will be part of the performance criteria used by the City when awarding contracts.

ALEXANDRIA, VA (ADMINISTRATIVE POLICY APPLIES TO CITY)
  • Background check after conditional offer of employment
On March 19, 2014, the City Manager of Alexandria released a policy memorandum announcing the City’s new ban the box policy. Pursuant to the new policy, inquiries regarding prior criminal history will only be made after a conditional offer of employment has been issued. The City Manager notes that implementation of this policy is likely to increase equity in the recruitment process, broaden the pool of candidates seeking City employment, and provide Alexandrians with records a better chance at achieving gainful employment.

Consideration of the legislation entailed extensive analysis by the County. The County found that “when people with criminal histories are denied a fair chance at employment, the entire community pays the cost in the form of diminished public safety, increased government spending on law enforcement and social services, and reduced government revenue in the form of lost income and sales taxes.”

The law covers employers in the County that have 15 or more full-time employees. Employers may not conduct an investigation of an applicant’s conviction history until after the conclusion of the first interview. If the employer intends to rescind a conditional offer, the employer must provide the applicant with a copy of the background check and specify the disqualifying information and give the applicant seven days to review the information. Applicants may file a complaint with the director of the human rights commission. County Executive Ike Leggett signed the legislation on November 10th and the law took effect on January 1, 2015.

On November 19, 2014, the county council unanimously passed a bill that sets fair standards for screening criminal records during the hiring process. The bill is intended to “enhance the health and safety of the community by assisting individuals with criminal records to lawfully provide for themselves and their families.” Under the legislation, an employer is not permitted to inquire about a job applicant’s arrest or conviction record until after a first job interview. In making an employment decision based on a person’s record, employers are only allowed to consider offenses that specifically demonstrate unfitness for the desired position. If an employer decides to rescind a job offer based on a record, they must notify the applicant of that decision, specify the information on which the decision is based, and provide a copy of the background check to the applicant. The county executive signed the bill on December 4, 2014.

MIAMI-DADE COUNTY (MIAMI, FL AREA; APPLIES TO COUNTY)
- Background check after conditional offer of employment
- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment
On October 6, 2015, the Miami-Dade Board of County Commissioners passed an ordinance regarding County employment. The County does not conduct a background check until after an applicant is selected as a finalist and receives a conditional offer of employment. The ordinance also prohibits the consideration of arrests that did not result in conviction and sealed, expunged, and pardoned convictions. It further mandates that the County consider how a conviction relates to the job and how much time has elapsed since the applicant was convicted, and requires that the applicant be given five days to respond to a potential withdrawal of the conditional offer before a final decision is made.

NASHVILLE, TN (ADMINISTRATIVE POLICY APPLIES TO CITY)
On November 10, 2015, the Metro Civil Service Commission voted unanimously to remove questions regarding criminal history from the application for employment with the City. The policy will go into effect no later than January 1, 2016 and includes exceptions for the police and fire departments.

PIMA COUNTY (TUCSON, AZ AREA; RESOLUTION APPLIES TO COUNTY)
On November 10, 2015, the Pima County Board of Supervisors passed a resolution that removes the inquiry about an applicant’s criminal record from the application for County employment. The County will still conduct background checks later in the hiring process, and the resolution will not apply to certain professions.

BATON ROUGE, LA (RESOLUTION APPLIES TO CITY)
On November 10, 2015, the East Baton Rouge Parish Metro Council eliminated questions regarding criminal history from the application for employment with the City. The resolution does not apply to certain positions.
DALLAS COUNTY (DALLAS, TX AREA; ADMINISTRATIVE POLICY APPLIES TO COUNTY)

- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment
- Right to appeal denial of employment

The Dallas County Commissioners voted unanimously on November 17, 2015 on a policy for the County. The County will delay requesting criminal history until later in the hiring process, consider how an offense relates to the position sought, the time elapsed since conviction, and evidence of rehabilitation in deciding whether a conviction is disqualifying. The policy also provides that applicants should be given the opportunity to review the background check and challenge its relevance and accuracy.

GAINESVILLE, FL (APPLIES TO CITY)

- Incorporates EEOC criteria in individualized assessment

City commissioners voted on November 19, 2015 to remove the criminal history inquiry from the city’s employment application. Human Resources reviews the criminal history information received, and when negative information is obtained, makes individual assessments, considering the age of the offense and its relevance to the job in making hiring decisions.

FORT MYERS, FL (RESOLUTION APPLIES TO CITY)

On December 7, 2015, the Fort Myers City Council passed a resolution to remove questions about felony convictions from city job applications. The City will still perform background checks on applicants, and police and fire department applications are exempt from the resolution.

ITHACA, NY (ADMINISTRATIVE POLICY APPLIES TO CITY)

On December 23, 2015, the City of Ithaca announced that it will be implementing a ban the box policy for public employers. Ithaca’s Director of Human Resources stated to the media, “[T]his community cannot afford to pass up talented, capable people in search of a second chance. At the very least, banning the box may eliminate unconscious bias or the perception of it. We are excited to model, through this initiative, what the city believes and practices.”
