Individual and Family Psychotherapy for Children, Teens, Young Adults and their Family. All issues related to Autism Spectrum Disorders.

I have been part of the Pioneer Valley psychotherapy community over the last 25 years.

I received my masters and doctorate education from the Smith College School of Social Work, followed by years in community mental health crisis work and then as a family therapist at The Austen Riggs Center in Stockbridge Ma.

I have always focused my education, training, and practice on relationship dynamics and social communication skill building in families and couples.

Propelled by a personal parenting experience, I have recently developed an interest and skills in the treatment of social communication challenges that appear common in ASD diagnoses for children, teens, and young adults.

Feel free to reach out and contact me with questions.

James Levine & Associates, P.C. provides an integrated array of services. They function as a team, and offer consultation based on their in-depth knowledge of schools and the developmental needs of children. At the same time, therapy services may occur in school or at our offices. While we ensure confidentiality, our goal is to coordinate interventions so that schools and families work together to ensure the educational, social, and psychological well-being of children. We provide extensive professional development training for school personnel along with mental health and family support agencies.

The Early Childhood Autism Clinic is now offering multi-disciplinary play-based comprehensive evaluations for children who may be at risk for autism spectrum disorders.
