Lincoln University

Lincoln University Lions Stadium
Since its founding in 1854, Lincoln University, the nation’s first degree-granting Historically Black College and University (HBCU), has been internationally recognized for its commitment to excellence in scholarship and service. Lincoln University graduates have distinguished themselves in many fields including medicine, science, theology, education, law, and the arts. In addition to our more visible graduates – Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall ‘30, poet and playwright Langston Hughes ‘29, the first president of Nigeria, Nnamdi Azikiwe ‘30, and the first president of Ghana, Kwame Nkrumah ‘39 – Lincoln University and its graduates have achieved the following additional distinctions: participated in the founding of eight universities in the United States and abroad, created the organization (Crossroads Africa) which served as the model for the U.S. Peace Corps, and published the first alumni magazine of any college or university (1884). Lincoln graduates also include the first African American Bishop of the United Methodist Church, Roy C. Nichols ‘41, and the first African American female rear admiral in the U.S. Navy, Lillian Fishburne ‘71.

The University’s beginnings can be traced back with recognition to its founder, Presbyterian Minister John Miller Dickey, his wife, Sarah Emlen Cresson, and the first two students - James Ralston Amos and his brother, Thomas H. Amos. Lincoln University was initially chartered as Ashmun Institute in honor of Jehudi Ashmun, the first governor of Liberia, and renamed Lincoln University in 1866 after the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln. Since its inception, Lincoln has attracted an interracial and international enrollment from the surrounding community and region, and around the world. The University admitted women students in 1952, and formally associated with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in 1972 as a state-related, coeducational university.

Lincoln University has had 13 presidents in its distinguished history with Interim President Richard Green currently at the helm. They include Dickey (1854-56); John Pym Carter (1856-61); John Wynne Martin (1861-65); Isaac Norton Rendall (1865-1906); John Ballard Rendall (1906-24); William Hallock Johnson (1926-36); Walter Livingston Wright (1936-45); Horace Mann Bond (1945-57); Marvin Wachman (1961-69); Herman Russell Branson (1970-85); Niara Sudarkasa (1987-98); Ivory V. Nelson (1999-2011), and Robert R. Jennings (2012-14).

Accredited by the Middle States Commission on Higher Education, Lincoln offers 40 academic programs, seven pre-professional programs, and seven graduate programs to nearly 2,000 students from 28 states and 19 foreign countries. Among those programs are a new Pan-Africana studies major and a new nationally accredited nursing program.

In addition, more than 25 percent of Lincoln’s undergraduate degrees awarded are in biology, chemistry, physics, mathematics, and computer science. Of those graduates (2001 to 2015), more than 90 have earned medical degrees or doctorate degrees in chemistry and related fields.

Lincoln University’s historic campus is located on 422 acres in Southern Chester County, Pennsylvania. Currently, Lincoln also operates two satellite locations; Lincoln University - University City in Philadelphia for its graduate and continuing education programs and Lincoln University – Coatesville in Coatesville, PA, where it offers select traditional and accelerated undergraduate programs as well as a dual enrollment program with Coatesville Area Senior High School. That location opened in 2013.

In 2000, the University began massive programmatic and physical plant upgrades. In the eight years that followed, Lincoln University secured $275 million to enhance the physical facilities and redesign the campus’ infrastructure. These funds allowed the University to construct the new high-tech Ivory V. Nelson Center for the Sciences as well as a state-of-the-art International Cultural Center. In addition, the University executed several major renovation projects, which included Ware Center, University Hall, Grim Hall, Wright Hall, the Langston Hughes Memorial Library, the Student Union Building and Lincoln’s University City satellite location in Philadelphia.

Over the years, the university’s expansion has not only been relegated to academics and infrastructure. In April 2006, Lincoln University continued its commitment to enhance the quality education and campus life experience for its student body, with the reinstatement of a football program and marching band to commence in fall 2008. The proposed move resulted in the eventual transition from Division III to Division II in 2010, which also required the addition of a women’s softball team to the athletic offerings. The Board of Trustees also approved re-affiliation with the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association (CIAA). The Lion football program, which fielded a team from 1894 through 1960, was an original member of the CIAA, winning the CIAA Conference championship in 1924. Aside from football, Lincoln provides students the opportunity to participate in collegiate competition in baseball, basketball, soccer, cross country, and volleyball. Lincoln University track and field athletes have also compiled an outstanding record of achievement in NCAA competition, capturing a total of 17 men’s and women’s national championships. The men’s basketball team won the 2014 Eastern Collegiate Athletic Association Championship. The following athletic season the women’s cross country team was CIAA cross country champion and the women’s basketball team placed second in the CIAA and the ECAC Championships.

Lincoln University remains committed to preserving its distinction as an intellectual and cultural resource for this region.

Soraya Moore Coley ’72 feels that a quality education remains one of the few pathways to social and economic well-being in a global society. Her life’s work is dedicated to creating access and opportunity to those who are the least likely to afford what is possible. Often referred to as a “community-minded” administrator, Coley has built bridges between the university and the community through her service, her research, and her work as an administrator.

She has over 25 years of academic and administrative experience. In her new administrative position, Coley became the sixth president of California State Polytechnic University, Pomona (Cal Poly Pomona) – and the first woman to serve in that role. She served as provost and vice president for Academic Affairs at California State University, Bakersfield, and was senior research fellow at Children and Family Future’s National Center on Child Welfare and Substance Abuse. Coley has also served as provost and vice president for Academic Affairs at Alliant International University, and is professor emeritus at California State University, Fullerton, where she served as dean of the College of Human Development and Community Service. She, however, credits Lincoln University, which gave Coley her start, with teaching her the fundamentals of higher education. From 1974 to 1976, she coordinated the now defunct-public administration program and taught sociology at Lincoln.

Coley earned her bachelor’s degree from Lincoln University, and her Master of Social Work and doctorate degrees in social planning and policy at Bryn Mawr College’s School of Social Work and Social Research. She is married to Lt. Col. (Ret.) Ron Coley.
Saara Kuugongelwa-Amadhila ’94 was named and sworn in as the fourth prime minister of Namibia in March 2015, making her the first woman to serve in that capacity.

Joining the struggle for Namibia’s independence in 1980, she went into exile at 12 years old and was educated at the Namibia Health and Education Center in Kwanza-Sul Angola under the South West Africa People’s Organization (SWAPO) Party of Namibia, then in the Republic of Sierra Leone in West Africa in 1982, Koidu Secondary School for Girls in the Kono District and St. Joseph’s Secondary School in Freetown.

Kuugongelwa-Amadhila, who earned her bachelor’s degree in economics from Lincoln, experienced a meteoric rise through Namibia’s government following her graduation.

Returning to Namibia, she took a position in the Office of the President under Sam Nujoma. In 1995, at 27 years old, she was named director general of the National Planning Commission. She also received her master’s degree in economics from the London School of Economics in 1998.

Five years later, Kuugongelwa-Amadhila was appointed as minister of finance and held that post until she was named prime minister. Under her leadership at the Ministry of Finance, she instituted a number of reforms, which improved efficiency, governance, transparency and increased revenue collection. She also oversaw the country’s first budget surplus for three consecutive years which enabled the country to weather the storm during the global financial crisis.

During that time, she was also conferred the Most Brilliant Order of the Sun, Second Class for meritorious service on Heroes’ Day 2014 by then-Namibian President Hifikepunye Pohamba.

Kuugongelwa-Amadhila is a member of the central committee and the political bureau of SWAPO and has served as the organization’s secretary for Economic Affairs. Previously, she served as a member of the central committee and national executive of the SWAPO Party Youth League.

The pageantry of commencement exercises dates from the Middle Ages and the traditions of Europe’s first universities. The origins of academic attire are obscure, but the ordinary dress of the scholar, whether student or teacher, was the dress of a cleric. The gown appears to be an adaptation of the robe of a priest or friar; the hood and the mortarboard evolved from the cowl and skullcap worn by monks and friars.

The gowns, hoods, and caps are different for each degree level – bachelor, master, and doctoral.

GOWN

The bachelor’s gown is a yoked, closed-front garment with long, pointed sleeves. The master’s can be worn open or closed and has long sleeves, usually closed but slit above the elbow to allow the forearm to protrude. Gowns for the bachelor’s and master’s degrees are untrimmed.

The doctoral gown has full, bell-shaped sleeves and is trimmed with velvet panels down the front with three velvet bars on each sleeve. Although black velvet is proper trimming for all doctoral gowns, the color of the velvet panels and bars is sometimes varied to indicate the academic discipline in which the degree was earned. For the Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) degree, the dark blue color is used to represent the mastery of learning and scholarship in any field and is not intended to represent the field of philosophy.

HOOD

The hood is worn around the neck and drapes down the back. They vary in length from three feet for the bachelor’s hood to four feet for the doctoral hood. Only the doctoral hood shall have panels at the sides. The hoods are lined with the official color or colors of the college or university conferring the degree. Thus, the hoods of graduates of Lincoln University are orange and blue. The edging of the hood is velvet or velveteen and may be either black or the color that corresponds to the academic discipline. Lincoln University uses white for the Bachelor of Arts, Gold for the Bachelor of Science and the Master of Science degrees, light blue for the Master of Education, and citron for the Master of Arts.

TASSEL

An integral part of the headdress, the tassel varies widely in its use and color. The doctor usually wears a gold tassel, although black is acceptable. Tassel colors often correspond to the color of the academic discipline. At Lincoln University, the black is used for the master’s degree and the school colors, orange and blue, are used for the bachelor’s tassel.

CAP

The mortarboard cap is generally recommended. The soft tam is reserved for the doctoral degree.

COLORS

FACULTY REPRESENTATIVE TO THE BOARD
Prof. Charles H. Pettaway, Jr.
Alma Mater
by A. Dennee Bibb, 1911

Dear Lincoln, Dear Lincoln,
To Thee we’ll e’er be true.
The golden hours we spent beneath
The dear old Orange and Blue,
Will live for e’er in memory,
As guiding stars through life;
For thee, our Alma Mater dear,
We’ll rise in our might.

For we love ev’ry inch of thy sacred soil,
Ev’ry tree on thy campus green;
And for thee with our might
We will ever toil
That thou mightest be supreme.
We’ll raise thy standard to the sky,
Midst glory and honor to fly.
And constant and true
We will live for thee anew,
Our dear old Orange and Blue.
Hail! Hail! Lincoln.
