Why cats can have problem Livers
Dr Brett Kirkland - BEACH ROAD VET CLINIC

Among the most common causes of feline liver disease is cholangiohepatitis, a condition marked by inflammation of both the liver and the biliary (gall bladder) system. This condition and hepatic lipidosis (fatty liver) combined account for perhaps two-thirds of all feline liver disorders treated at referring hospitals in the USA. Strangely, we don’t see a lot of hepatic lipidosis in New Zealand. The typical signs of cholangiohepatitis include loss of appetite, fever, vomiting, and jaundice (which can cause the white portions of the eye to appear yellow in color).

An eight year old neutered male siamese cat, came to see me with a common problem this time of year, he was lethargic and off his food. During the cats breeding season, which starts a month or two before christmas, all the entire male toms are active. This results in frequent fights while they are on the prowl competing to mate with on season females. I’m not sure what they make of desexed cats but they seem to be caught up in the increased fighting activity as well.

His temperature was up from the normal 38.5 degrees celsius to over 40.2 degrees. Typically a high temperature indicates an infection (although any widespread tissue damage will do it.) The expected outcome with fever is generally good - it is a normal response to tissue insult/damage by a fairly healthy cat. I prescribed antibiotics and a drug to reduce fever and booked him in for a check in a few days.

The next day the patient had deteriorated with a subnormal body temperature! This worries me a lot more than fever. When patients are losing the battle their circulation starts to fail and their peripheral temperature drops. We admitted the cat for a drip, radiographs and blood tests.

The Radiographs identified focal gasy intestines, which could be an indication of partial blockage. The bloods were more useful in this case, indicating septic inflammation (i.e. infection) and a problem in the liver. While the possibilities include a tumour of the liver, this pattern is common in cats due to a peculiarity of their anatomy. The bile duct and the pancreatic duct in cats shares a common opening into the duodenum (first portion of the small intestine). This results in a large opening, making cats prone to infection gaining entry from the intestine, which is normally full of bacteria! A condition called “Cholangiohepatitis” (which means inflamed liver and gall bladder). With time these patients often become jaundiced so we were monitoring his progress by watching to see if the whites of his eyes turned yellow.

Having a definite diagnosis, I was able to revise the treatment. We had to add another antibiotic and a liver stimulant to the mix and treat for a longer period. To ensure this was working, we retested the liver in 6 days. The specific tests for the Liver were much improved this time, near normal, which reassured us that he was getting better. 2 weeks later, our patient had finished his tablets and was back to his normal self.

Road Safe Kids

It has been a busy start to 2016 at First Steps Papamoa. One of our fun learning events was a Road Safety Show by Dan the Puppet Man. The children enjoyed two shows; one in the infant and toddler room which was fun and interactive and they got to meet all the road safe characters. The second show was for the pre-schoolers where they learnt about; Holding hands with an adult when crossing the road, Not running across the road, To stop, look and listen, And, not to chase after their ball if it rolls onto the road.

We followed this learning up with some interesting conversations with the children during mat time for the rest of the week. We can’t wait to learn more next time we meet with Dan the Puppet Man.

Greetings

The February meeting went very well with good attendance. Steve Morris was up to his usual good form on Council matters, plus some interesting questions from the floor. Good news was that Grenada Street should be going right through in the near future. Hooray!

At Zone 3 meeting in Matamata also in February, discussion on the National AGM in Christchurch revolved on costs travel, etc. at which it was announced accociations attending will received subsidy. Pulse Energy is going well, some problems with membership payments?

Medical Insurance mentioned with possible reductions for GP members. The Health Ministry are planning “Older People Strategy” meetings the first one to be held at the Holiday Inn Rotorua, 7th March at 3pm. IF, you are interested contact the Holiday Inn before departing. To check up as sometimes information can go astray, and plans change.

A Grey Power Advocacy meeting is planned in March at Parliament, discussion with various Ministers or their stand ins to take place I’m guessing Health and Pensions will be top of the list!

No Meeting this month. See you in April when Subs are due $~$ Dorothy 574 7271

STILL UP THERE—describes January sales with 48 sales (-38 on last month reflecting all those December section sales) incl. 5 sections and a good result for just 3 business weeks (equivalent to 64 sales when recalculated over 4 weeks). The 500s dominated with equal selling numbers in the 600s and 700s reflecting higher selling prices. Meantime stock numbers have increased as more sellers decide its ‘time to move on’. A ‘Sellers market’ continues however and anecdotally there still remains good numbers through open homes and those unable to find what they are looking for. First Home buyers (yes there still some out there) are now looking in the late 300s/ early 400s. [Email me about price increases there have been in your area].

More owners are asking me whether now is a good time to sell given uncertainties in the Auckland market. Maybe this is why local stock levels here have increased? Contact me to have a confidential chat about your selling options it won’t take long and my service is FREE. Enjoy the continued ‘green’ summer and if your goal is to sell in 2016 contact me now. Close to home so many are planning cruises in and around our summer, and with so much choice there are plenty of options for you to see New Zealand in a different light. You will get to truly appreciate how beautiful our country is and from the sea is a magnificent way to do this.

Not all cruise lines are created equal, they vary in size, style, standard and age. Some ships within a range can be brand new and luxurious while others are in need of a refurbishment. Our team are kept up to date with all new developments with the cruise lines and the team can answer all your questions and guide you to making the right decision for you.

From family Christmas’s to celebrate in a different way...to exploring far off lands from a different perspective, cruising has become an increasingly popular way for the New Zealand holiday makers to travel. You can travel the world to places best seen by sea and do this all while having to only unpack once. The ship becomes you home, the crew becomes your family, & fellow travellers your friends. What better way to see some of the world’s most idyllic untouched natural wonders.

What is key for our team is we want to ensure you have the right experience on board and ensure you select the right cruise line for you. Our team have access to an internal cruise system which will show them all the cruise lines travelling within a particular region at any time of the year. The team know what to look for and which cruise lines are offering the best deal at any given time.

Our buying power, our knowledge, and our market understanding means that when you book with us you will get the best price and you will never pay more than if you were to buy online direct from the cruise line. What you benefit from in addition is our un-biased & specialty advice and expertise to ensure you are looked after long before you even board your cruise.

The Parents and Friends Group support the College through fundraising for items which are required by the school to provide the best possible education for our children. The 2016 focus for fundraising is to purchase an aluminium covered trailer for the school’s recently acquired minivan.
