What an incredible year 2013 was for West Texas A&M University. The campus and student enrollment have continued to grow at amazing rates. We saw the highest enrollment numbers ever this year as new Buffs flooded the WT campus with enthusiasm for discovering the next exciting chapter of their lives. WT’s first-ever Summer Reunion in June brought a strong force of alumni back to campus to reminisce and reunite with old friends. WT students shined in the classroom, on the playing fields and in the community, making it another great year to be a Buff.

Listing all of the WTAMU accomplishments here would be an impossible task, but some of the biggest news of the year was when the University reached, and then surpassed, its $35 million Share Your Pride Comprehensive Campaign goal. In August of 2012, WT kicked off the public phase of this fund-raising campaign that began with a silent phase in 2009. Program enhancement, capital projects and student scholarships are all direct beneficiaries of the raised funds. Thanks to the phenomenal generosity of donors, WT students will be given the advantages of the best in learning opportunities, state-of-the-art facilities and financial assistance. This will allow more of our faculty to pursue projects they are passionate about through endowed chairs and professorships, students will attend classes in named classrooms, and many eager learners will be given the chance to have an education that may have not otherwise existed.

It was also a banner year to be a student-athlete at WT, with many teams reaching great heights in the Lone Star Conference. The Lady Buff volleyball team made the program’s seventh appearance in the NCAA Division II Final Four. Buff football advanced to the NCAA Quarterfinals and men’s and women’s cross country each brought home the Lone Star Conference Championship title. WT’s newest addition to the sports arena, track and field, claimed six All-American honors. I am especially proud that WTAMU placed a league-leading 179 student-athletes on the 2013-14 Lone Star Conference Commissioner’s Honor Roll. To be eligible, student-athletes must have a minimum 3.30 GPA for the current semester and be active on the roster. Forty-five of the Buff athletes on the list had a perfect 4.0 GPA. I believe this is a testament to WT athletes who understand and appreciate that their primary purpose here at the University is to receive an education. Great job, Buffs!

WTAMU’s beautiful campus continued to grow with the opening of the Jack B. Kelley Student Center expansion in 2013. This includes the brand new campus venue Legacy Hall which boasts the best in technology for campus events. Also inside the JBK, WT’s eBuff Store opened giving WT students an Apple Certified, electronic shopping option right here on campus. The newest campus residence hall, Founders Hall, opened its doors to 400 new residents in the fall of 2013 as WTAMU’s largest and most state-of-the-art residence hall to date.

As the WT family continues to grow in students and supporters, the year ahead is full of promise and possibility. We are excited about working with the Panhandle community in continuing our legacy of educational excellence and quality experience at West Texas A&M University. We thank you for all of your support and dedication to this University. Go Buffs!
President’s Circle is a special group of alumni, business and community leaders and supporters of the University whose generous gifts of undesignated monies provide non-restricted funding for the President to benefit students, programs and events.
Student athletes at West Texas A&M University are accustomed to working overtime to ensure their commitments are being met both on the playing field and in the classroom. That’s why it is even more impressive when they not only succeed at both but excel.

There is no better example than former Buff football players Aaron Mullane and Dustin Vaughan. The 2013 WT graduates were both finalists for the prestigious National Football Foundation Scholarship—Mullane in 2012 and Vaughan in 2013. Each year, 15 finalists from across the country are chosen. Each finalist receives an $18,000 scholarship, and the winner of the award, often referred to as the “Academic Heisman Trophy,” receives an additional $7,500. Academic prowess, athletic accomplishments and community service are all factors taken into consideration. Although neither Buff won the final prize, just being named to the list of national finalists is an amazing feat.

“The scholarship opportunities I received throughout college not only took away the burden of debt after college, but also proved to be a motivation to succeed in my academics throughout my career at West Texas A&M University.”

DUSTIN VAUGHAN ’13
“Even though I didn’t win the award, the experiences I was able to have, along with my parents, coach and some of the biggest names associated with the game of football are some I will keep close to my heart for the rest of my life,” said Mullane.

Both Mullane and Vaughan credit scholarships for allowing them to have the time to devote to being not only exemplary athletes but students as well. “The scholarship opportunities I received throughout college not only took away the burden of debt after college, but also proved to be a motivation to succeed in my academics throughout my career at West Texas A&M University” said Vaughan.

“I have been blessed to have had the vast majority of my undergraduate education funded through scholarships endowed by many generous people, to whom I will be forever thankful,” said Mullane. “Without the scholarships I have received, it would have been significantly more difficult to arrive where I am today academically.”

Scholarships are a vital aspect of life at WT that allow students to take in the full college experience. They provide students with time to focus on their studies, to be involved on campus and to not be saddled with crippling debt upon graduation.

Thanks to the generosity of WT donors who provide that scholarship bridge between college and the future, Mullane and Vaughan have successfully moved on to the next phase of living out their dreams. Mullane is finishing his first year of medical school at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center School of Medicine, where he is pursuing a career as an orthopedic surgeon with an emphasis in sports medicine. “I may have played my last game as an athlete, but every day I am one step closer to helping future athletes play their next,” he says.

Vaughan is currently in Dallas pursuing a career in the NFL. “Obviously the pursuit of an NFL career is not foolproof, so medical school is still not out of the question, but for now I plan to put everything I have into doing something I have dreamed about since I was a child.”

Thanks to scholarships at WT, those dreams could very easily come true.

West Texas A&M University awards approximately $4 million each year in scholarships to new and continuing students, but there are always more students to help.

It was a moment when everything clicked into place. A mother was searching for a place to find answers, and faculty members at West Texas A&M University wanted to help parents find those answers. Awareness of those needs and a generous gift to the University are now making a difference for children and parents through the WTAMU Center for Learning Disabilities (CLD).

Parents of children with learning disabilities often feel isolated and don’t even know where to look for help. One longtime WTAMU supporter found herself needing answers, and that’s when Puff Niegos started asking questions.

“I’m the parent of a child with dyslexia, and I’ve struggled like so many parents with the diagnosis,” Niegos said. “There are so many questions, and I couldn’t find a good place for the answers. I talked to Eddie (Henderson, dean of the College of Education and Social Sciences) about how to help parents like me learn about what we are dealing with and about any possible solutions that might be available.”

Niegos learned that WTAMU faculty members were talking about the same thing. Funding was a roadblock to creating a solution, so the Piehl family stepped in with some start-up funds, and today the WTAMU Center for Learning Disabilities is providing a resource for parents of children with learning disabilities through a website and educational, research and community outreach initiatives. The Center is housed at WTAMU’s Amarillo Center in Amarillo.

The CLD is a collaborative effort designed to promote evidence-based teaching and research to help those with learning disabilities find success. Parents have a network of support through the CLD while educators and administrators count on professional development designed to help in the identification of students with learning disabilities along with a curriculum to ensure improved student learning.

Students in multiple disciplines at WTAMU will benefit with hands-on learning in a proposed state-of-the-art laboratory. The facility will serve as a classroom for undergraduate and graduate students learning to assess and teach children with disabilities. It also will provide students, teachers, educators and families opportunities to experience the latest in technology and adaptive equipment. Traditional assessment instruments and technology-based and assisted assessments will be used to focus on the early identification of exceptional learners.

Other services provided by the CLD include community outreach, student scholarships, research, grants and the Distinguished Lecture Series in Learning Disabilities as well as assessments and parent and student workshops. WTAMU’s Department of Education plans to establish certificate programs focused on dyslexia for both undergraduate and graduate students along with an endowed chair in learning disabilities to provide leadership for the Center.

Niegos’ vision and the Piehl family support have provided a much needed gift to children and parents across the Panhandle—a gift that is changing lives.
The Texas Poets’ Corner is a beautiful, spacious room tucked behind stacks of periodicals in the northeast corner of Cornette Library. It’s a hidden treasure on the West Texas A&M campus and the perfect example of unique giving to the University with an array of rare books, manuscripts, artwork and its latest acquisition, a grand piano.

Dr. Jenny Lind Porter-Scott was a professor of English at what was then West Texas State College from 1959-1961. In 2000, Porter-Scott, a Poet Laureate of Texas, remembered her former workplace with a generous donation of more than 1,800 rare books to WTAMU’s Cornette Library. More gifts followed and in 2003, the University celebrated the grand opening of the Texas Poets’ Corner at the library.

Porter-Scott’s latest gift to the Texas Poets’ Corner is part of her dream for the special room. The piano was purchased at an auction in Austin specifically for the library and now takes center stage in its new home among Porter-Scott’s other donations of books, paintings, antique furniture and oriental rugs.

The piano was built circa 1870 in England by Collard and Collard and refurbished in 1984. The instrument is more than a century old, and the beauty and care of the piano shows through its glossy rosewood finish. Modern pianos boast 88 keys, but the Texas Poets’ Corner piano has 85—all original—keys, a number typical for pianos in the late 19th century. Once the piano is tuned, library officials plan to host intimate concerts and recitals in the Texas Poets’ Corner.

“Dr. Jenny Lind Porter-Scott is an acclaimed poet and author, and I feel fortunate to have experienced her charm and graciousness as a teacher and master of the English language,” Shawna Kennedy-Witthar, director of information and library resources, said. “Jenny Lind’s heart resides in the books, manuscripts, art and furnishings of the Texas Poets’ Corner. When she packed up the first shipment of books she sent to the library, Jenny Lind told her late husband, Lawrence Scott, that she was sending her children off to college. Unlike our students who will graduate and leave West Texas A&M University, Jenny Lind has entrusted us with her children in perpetuity. We are thankful for her trust and call her a true friend of the Cornette Library.”

Porter-Scott earned both a bachelor’s degree and a master’s degree from Texas Christian University. In 1955 she became the youngest woman to earn a doctoral degree at the University of Texas at Austin. During her career, she taught at West Texas State College, The University of Tennessee and Huston-Tillotson College in Austin, where she taught for more than 20 years. In addition to being named a Poet Laureate of Texas (1964), Porter-Scott also was inducted into the Texas Women’s Hall of Fame (1985). The English professor spent just a few years at the University, but her time here has never been forgotten. In a quote from 2000, she explained her affection for West Texas A&M University.
“I have close feelings for WT. Isabel Robinson, head of the art department at that time, painted my portrait, and I became very close friends with Mary Liz and James Cornette. They were sweet and wonderful to me when I lost my mother. I’ll never forget them.”

And the Texas Poets’ Corner proves that. Many donations to the University come in the form of money for scholarships or programs, but Porter-Scott’s gifts are very unique. The Texas Poets’ Corner represents Porter’s fondness for the University as well as her dream to share her love of literature, art and music with others. Her generosity provides a beautiful corner for research and study and will continue to enhance the cultural experience for students, faculty, staff and visitors for generations to come.

“Our donors are making an investment not only in WT students, but they also are investing in this region, state and nation by improving human capital. We are so thankful for their generosity as they are making dreams come true for so many students.”

Dr. J. Patrick O’Brien, University president
