About Community Colleges

Nearly half of all U.S. undergraduates attend community college. Often referred to as “democracy’s colleges,” community colleges offer a wide range of needs for a diverse student population.

The cornerstone of the community college mission is open access – our doors are open to all who seek a higher education. For many, community colleges serve as a transfer point to a four-year college or university, and for others, it’s a final destination for gainful employment or personal enrichment.

Community colleges educate 70 percent of new nurses and the majority of health-care workers.

80 percent of firefighters, law enforcement officers, and EMT’s are credentialed at community colleges.

Transfer students from community colleges to the University of California account for 48 percent of UC’s bachelor’s degrees in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM).

The average lifetime earnings of a graduate with an associate degree is $1.6 million — $400,000 more than for a high school graduate.

Students who earn a degree or certificate nearly double their earnings within three years.

Saddleback College transferred over 3,368 students to four-year colleges and universities in 2013-2014

Transfer Success
Of the 112 California Community Colleges, Saddleback College ranks 11th in transfers to the University of California and 11th in transfers to the California State University. Of the nine community colleges in Orange County, Saddleback College ranks first in transfers to UC Santa Cruz, UC Davis, and UCSB, second to UCLA, and third to UCI and UCSD. To help students achieve their transfer goals, numerous workshops, campus tours, and college fairs are held each year.

Associate Degree for Transfer
A new joint transfer program between California Community Colleges and the California State Universities makes it easier for students to transfer between the two systems. Now community college students who complete a new AA-T or AS-T will be guaranteed admission to the California State University system.

About the Saddleback Logo
Saddleback College adopted its name from the slump (or saddleback) between the twin peaks of Santiago and Modjeska in the Cleveland National Forest. Our logo depicts this prominent geographical feature, which provides a dramatic backdrop to our campus and to the whole of the Saddleback Valley.
