The first respect is to respect myself—to know that I am naturally valuable.

Part of self-respect is knowing my own qualities. Respect is knowing I am lovable and capable.

Respect is listening to others. Respect is knowing others are valuable too.

Respect for the self is the seed that gives growth to confidence. When we have respect for ourselves, it is easy to have respect for others.

Those who show respect will receive respect. To know one’s worth and to honour the worth of others is how one earns respect.

Part of respect is knowing I make a difference.
A special programme of events entitled ‘North Belfast Respect Programme 2013’ will take place throughout the month of March. This programme is organised by Ashton Community Trust and is funded by the Office of First Minister and Deputy First Minister (OFMDFM) through the North Belfast Strategic Good Relations Programme and Belfast City Council Good Relations Unit though the European Union Peace III Programme.

This Respect Programme includes a series of events and activities aimed at raising awareness and understanding around a range of important themes. This year’s programme will particularly focus on issues pertaining to transitional justice and conflict transformation, rights and discrimination, socio-economic deficits as well as health and well being inequalities. We hope that the programme will attract the interest of local people, community activists, the business and education sectors, government policy makers, academics, politicians and society at large. The intention is to encourage rational, positive debate and reflection on these key issues. In the process we hope that the Respect Programme can make a meaningful contribution towards finding positive solutions to the many complex problems that exist.

We offer our thanks to all the organisers who have worked hard to create a truly unique showcase of events. Thanks also to the various contributors, without your input this programme would not have been possible.

We hope that you enjoy the 2013 Respect Programme and we extend a very warm invitation to everyone that wishes to participate.

North Belfast Respect Programme 2013

Week 1
Starting Monday 4th March 2013

Headline Event
Dealing with the Past: Dig Where You Stand

Monday 4th March
Time: 9.30 am - 2.00 pm (lunch at 1.00 pm)
Venue: Belfast Castle, Antrim Road, Belfast, BT15 5GR

Conversations that focus on dealing with the legacy of the past inevitably refer to aspects of transitional justice, which is not a special kind of justice, but an approach to achieving justice in times of transition from conflict. Ashton Community Trust through its Bridge of Hope Programme is actively engaged in this field of legacy work. Its Transitional Justice grass roots programmes are centred on the grounded principle that people living in areas that experienced the worst impacts of the conflict have a vital contribution to make to the civic work of dealing with the past and building justice. This conference brings together a number of people with considerable expertise and experience to reflect on key issues that arise when we talk about dealing with the past and the implications for victims and survivors.

Panel Speakers: Chair: Maggie Beirne, Reverend Robin Eames, Professor Bill Rolston, Eilish Rooney, Kathryn Stone OBE

Please RSVP to Bridge of Hope by email to Aine Magee aine.magee@ashtoncentre.com or telephone: (028) 9074 6737

Policing & Community Safety: Expectations & Challenges Facing the PSNI & Communities

Tuesday 5th March
Time: 10.00 am - 1.00 pm
Venue: Groundwork, Duncairn Gardens

Policing remains an emotive issue particularly for communities most badly affected by the conflict. However since the signing of the GFA it is now accepted that our society requires and deserves a new civic police service fit for purpose in the modern era. To discuss these issues within the context of Inner North Belfast, community practitioners, academics and PSNI representatives come together. All welcome.

Promoted by IRISS at the University of Ulster, INTERCOMM and the Duncairn Community Partnership (DCP)
DCP includes - North Belfast Community Development and Transition Group, North Belfast Interface Network, INTERCOMM and GROUNDWORK (NI) along with Tigers Bay and Mountcollyer Concerned Residents and Greater Newington Residents Association.

Speakers: Dr. Johnny Byrne University of Ulster, PSNI and Local Community Representatives

Starting Monday 11th March 2013

Headline Event

How do we Tackle Sectarianism in North Belfast? Are we Winning?
Monday 11th March
Time: 10.00 am - 1.00 pm
Venue: NICVA, Duncairn Gardens, Belfast

In the midst of ongoing sectarian violence, division and hatred on the streets of Belfast there are serious concerns for the future. Despite the peace process, political power sharing and many years of community relations work, it would appear that there remains a mountain to climb if real progress in relation to tackling sectarianism is ever to be achieved. To discuss this issue a number of guest speakers will address the question: How do we Tackle Sectarianism in North Belfast? Are We Winning? This discussion will be led by Dr Duncan Morrow
Panel: Dr. Duncan Morrow (University of Ulster), Pastor Jack McKee and Chris Quinn (NI Youth Forum)

Belfast/ Cork Mutual Heritage Project - Launch of Titanic Mural

Friday 15th March
Time: 2.30 pm
Venue: New Lodge Youth Centre, (Upper Meadow Street)

Three groups formed a partnership around this project; the North Belfast Community Transition Group (Tigers Bay), the Mahon Community Development Project (Cork City) and Tar Isteach Republican Ex-Prisoner Project (New Lodge/ Antrim Road). All three areas endure high levels of deprivation and disadvantage. The New Lodge and Tigers Bay areas have been severely affected by the conflict. The project drew young unemployed men from across the different communities to reflect on the shared histories of Belfast and Cork people through the story of the Titanic and the recent history and contemporary stories of each. The physical product of this collaboration is a mural about the Titanic which provides pictorial evidence of the young men’s understanding of each other, their shared histories and respective traditions. The joint narrative challenges old ideas and attitudes within and across communities. Come along to view this exciting new mural and listen to some reflections from this interesting project and related issues. Refreshments available.

Headline Event

Beyond the Zero Sum Game: The Truth about Deprivation in Working Class Communities

Wednesday 20th March
Time: 2.00 pm – 5.00 pm
Venue: Belfast Castle, Ben Madigan Room

It is said that the recent flags protests reflect increasing feelings of insecurity and alienation within the Protestant working class, including perceptions about social and economic discrimination. This loss of economic status is true but there has been no subsequent rise in the position of the Catholic working class as they still remain worse off. Can we permit social deprivation to be understood differently? Should we not understand the needs of working class communities irrespective of their political standpoint? Can we unite communities to seek better standards of living and civic inclusion for all? Is this all about ‘zero-sum’ politics and are we naive to think we can challenge poverty and sectarianism together?

A panel of experts have been assembled to discuss these issues including- Professor Peter Shirlow (QUB), Mark Langhammer (Association of Teachers and Lecturers), Tim Cunningham (PhD Student, Transitional Justice Institute at UU) and Goretti Horgan Lecturer in Social Policy - School of Criminology, Politics and Social Policy at UU - Chairperson - Mike Ritchie.

A Right to Work? A Right to Welfare? Exhibition and Discussion
Thursday 21st March
Time: 12.00 noon - 1.30 pm
Venue: Golden Thread Gallery, Great Patrick Street, Belfast

This event is specially dedicated in memory of ‘Inez McCormack (1943 – 2013) who was a feminist, labour organiser, human rights and equalities campaigner, negotiator, mentor, orator, movement builder, and much more. Regardless of the endeavour she undertook, Inez’s focus was to support and raise the voices of marginalised groups who were often excluded from decisions made about their lives. Her work continues through the organisation she founded in 2006, Participation and the Practice of Rights.

A Right to Work? A Right to Welfare? Exhibition and Discussion
“Do I feel respected? Not at all. I’m looked down on.” Since August 2012, the Participation and the Practice of Rights (PPR) organisation have been working with people from North and West Belfast who are unemployed and are facing increased exclusion and hardship. Over 150 people looking for work or living with illnesses, disabilities, and caring responsibilities have taken part in interviews, workshops and actions in recent months, each with a different story, each affected by cuts, job loss, and the failure by government to target resources into areas of obvious and proven need. The exhibition has been produced by unemployed artists working with PPR and the group, and will display the real human impact of NI Executive policy, welfare cuts and ‘economic growth’ plans.

The exhibition will be followed by a Q&A discussion by members of the group, Seán Brady (PPR), and North Belfast welfare advice worker Agnes Fraser (Tar Isteach). Lunch will be provided.

3:30 Health Inequalities: Key Elements for Success
4:00 Panel Q & A and Way Forward
Panel: Joan Devlin (Chair), Dr. Eddie Rooney, Dr. Leslie Boydell, Hazel Stuteley, Dr. Jessica Allen
4:30 Closing Remarks

Beacon Estate
In the mid-1990s, two health visitors Hazel Stuteley and Philip Trenoweth, worked on the Beacon and Old Hill Estate in Falmouth (pop. 6000), one of the most disadvantaged communities in the UK. They were appalled at the physical condition of the estate and the sense of isolation and despair felt by the residents locked into a community racked by vandalism, crime and extreme poor health.

Realising that the estate had been abandoned by the statutory agencies, the health visitors set out to re-engage and reconnect both public services and the community. Gradually the community was re-born as a result of a community led Multi - Agency Partnership. Its self esteem has returned. Education and health have all drastically improved, crime rates have fallen and progress continues to be sustained. The Beacon Project became the catalyst for the Connecting Communities Programme.

Below are just some of the many transformational outcomes.
• By 2000, the overall crime rate had dropped by 50%.
• Affordable central heating and external cladding had been installed in over 60% of the properties
• Childhood asthma rates decreased 40% and school days lost reduced
• Child Protection Registrations had dropped by 42%.
• Post-natal depression was down by 70%.
• Breast feeding rates increased by 30%
• The educational attainment of 10-11 year old boys - i.e., level 4, key stage 2 - was up by 100%.
• In 2002 there were no unwanted teenage pregnancies.
• Unemployment rate fell by 71% amongst both males and females.
